Russia's Strength Greatest

Has Million Air Force Reservists While U. S. Has Only 300,000 Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has about a million Air Force reservists it could call upon in case of a war. The United States has 300,000.

This was announced today by the U.S. Air Force in the Air Reservist, official Air Force monthly magazine. The Air Force said the article is the first known attempt at rounding up Russia's Air Force Reserve strength and program.

The article left many holes in the complete picture because, the Air Force said, it was impossible to get all the information needed. But it does indicate what the U.S. might be up against in case of a war with Russia.

The million-man reserve organization would supplement the regular Russian Air Force in case of war. How many aircraft these reserves would put in the sky the Air Force couldn't say.

The Russians said in March, 1951, they had 18,000 combat planes with a big enough regular Air power of the regular Air Force is not publicly known.

The United States now has a 970,000-man Air Force with about 20,000.

The backbone of the Red Air Force Reserve is the "Aero Clubs." They're staffed by professional flying and training instructors, the Air Force said, adding:

"In 1937, the Soviet leaders gave the Aero Clubs the mission of training 150,000 pilots. Just what percentage of this goal was reached is not known, but when World War II started the clubs had created a vast reserve of semi-trained pilots and technicians upon which the Soviet Air Force was able to draw during the early part of the conflict."

The training for these reservists is tough and to get a top pilot 2,500 hours of flying. They must "have flown at least 10 types of aircraft, carried out several night and instrument cross country flights and have at least six years sport flying to their credit."

The reservists take part each year in the Air Force Day program in Moscow from actual observations, the Air Force said, the standard of their flying his high. It pointed out, however, that only the best pilots would be used in such a show.

The manpower for the reserve organization comes from a constant stream of regular Air Force personnel going off active duty.

Stalin Says Capitalistic War More Probable Than With Reds

MOSCOW (AP) — Prime Minister Stalin said today it is more probable that capitalistic nations will go to war than that there will be a war involving the soviet union. when Japan and Germany "break out of American slavery," and he pictured this as increasing the chances of capitalistic war.

Stalin expressed his views in a 50-page article (probably 25,000 words) in the magazine Bolshevik. He spoke on the eve of the Communist party congress, meeting her Sunday for the first time since 1939.

Stalin told his fellow communists that Japan and Western Europe will not necessarily remain obedient to the United States, as he put it. He said it can't be taken for granted that these countries will not eventually try to break out of "bondage."

In order to make wars inevitable, he contended, "it is necessary to destroy imperialism."

In expressing his views, Stalin said he was correcting the mistakes of other Communists who believed there was little likelihood of conflicts between capitalstic countries because the United States, as they stated it, had subjected them to satellite positions.

The article by Stalin bore the title "Economic Problems of Socialism in the USSR." The title is in line with the party view that the Soviet Union is in socialst state of development, aiming toward the ultimate goal of Communism.

Stalin said:

"Certain comrades contend that because of new international conditions following the second World War, wars between capitalistic countries ceased to be inevitable."

These comrades, the Soviet leader said, are mistaken. He explained they felt that contradictions between socialism and capitalism were stronger than the contradictions between capitalistic countries themselves — that they take the view the United States has so subjected other capitalistic countries that here is little possibility of future wars between them.

Not so, said Stalin.

Mayor Sees No Need To Admit Negroes To Bothwell Hospital

Mayor Herb Studer released the following statement Wednesday afternoon in reply to a petition from the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People asking that the facilities of Bothwell Hospital be opened to the Negro citizens of this community.

"Last week Mr. Carl R. Johnson from Kansas City, Mo., who is president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, spent one-half day in this city, concerning the Negro Hospital. He came to my office and suggested that Negro patients should be admitted to the Bothwell Hospital. I explained to him that this city owned and maintained a hospital for colored people, and was constantly in the process of improving it and its facilities, in the same way that we maintain the Bothwell Hospital.

"I pointed out to Mr. Johnson that not one single patient had suffered from lack of good treatment or facilities, and that proportionately, according to population per capita and per patient, the City administration has even spent more money on improvements and operating expenses there, than we do on the Bothwell Hospital.

"I called to Mr. Johnson's attention that while the Bothwell Hospital was crowded and filled to its capacity most of the time, that Hospital No. 2 had gone for as long as a month at a time without a single patient, and that it was my personal opinion that as long as the City provided adequate hospital facilities for Negro patients, that I did not believe that it was wise to do away with this service, and therefore further increase an already crowded condition at the Bothwell.

"Mr. Johnson informed me that regardless of the money for improvements spent on the Negro Hospital, he felt that Negro patients should be admitted to the Bothwell Hospital, and that he was recommending to the local NAACP that a petition be drawn up to be presented to the Mayor and members of the City Council for their consideration.

"Dr. Maddox, who is in charge of Hospital No. 2, advises me that good improvements have been, and are being made, in hospital services, and as Mayor of this city, I feel that both hospitals should be maintained as they are at the present time, and that services at both hospitals should continue to be maintained at the highest possible level for all citizens."

Elks Entertain Newspapermen Observing US Newspaper Week

Wednesday evening the Sedalia Lodge, No. 125 BPOE, was host to Sedalia newspaper men, including publishers and employes of the Sedalia Democrat-Capital and the Sedalia Times in observance of National Newspaper Week.

After the regular lodge meeting, the hall was turned over to them for a brief program followed by lunch and refreshments in the Elks' Home basement.

Exalted Ruler James H. Durley, presiding at the program, introduced O. B. Poundstone, an Elk and also connected with newspapers for many years. Mr. Poundstone gave the principal talk of the evening, stressing the purpose of the Elks in furtherance of support to newspapers, which in the past several decades, he pointed out, had reached a high plane in dissemination of news and of standing for the better things of life.

He told of how several newspapers started in recent years that were avowed Communists, or had such leanings, had ceased to exist owing to those papers that frowned on such making exposes in a way that they could no longer exist.

His talk also was to the point on the puroses and aims of the higher class of newspapers of today compared with those of earlier times. The volume of news handled was referred to and the effort that is put forth by editors, reporters and others to have them up to high standard in facts, accuracy and readibility.

Then in lighter vein George H. Scruton, editor of the Democrat, made some timely remarks, as did Carl McIntire, news editor of the Democrat, and Stanton Hudson, of the Sedalia Times.

It was an evening educational, interesting and entertaining for the goodly number fortunate enough to have been present.

Silver Dollars Go to Winners In Lions Pet Show Sunday

Thirty-five silver dollars will find their way into the pockets of children from Sedalia and the surrounding area whose pets are judged the best at the annual Lions Club Pet Show at the Liberty Park bandstand at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 5.

"This isn't intended to be a professional contest," Jim Langridge, chairman of the show, made haste to explain. "We're out to have some fun."

Three judges will select the winners, while Bob Cain will emcee the show. Division winners will each receive one silver dollar. A grand prize of two dollars will be given the owner of the pet judged the best in the whole show, with a second prize of one dollar. There will be ice cream for all children attending.

By way of illustrating his point that the show is just for fun, Langridge said that, among others, prizes will be given for pets with the curliest tails, shortest legs, longest hair, biggest feet, for the noisiest pet, and the pet that most closely resembles its master.

"Leave your pedigrees at home and bring your pet," he said.

Russia Charges Denmark Wants Troops In NATO

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia has accused Denmark of negotiating with the United States to set up NATO bases for foreign troops on Danish territory. Such bases, a firmly-worded Russian note declared, would create a "threat to the security of the Soviet Union."

The formal Russian protest, published today in all Moscow newspapers and delivered yesterday to the Danish minister here, said establishment of such bases would violate Danish - Soviet agreements reached since the end of World War II.

"The Soviet government puts upon the Danish government all responsibility for possible consequences of such a policy," the Russian note declared.

The protest followed close on Soviet press attacks on the recent eight - nation NATO "mainbrace" naval maneuvers around Norway and Denmark, both Atlantic Pact members. Russian newspapers had described the war games, which included a landing by U. S. Marines on Denmark's Jutland peninsula, as evidence of aggressive intentions toward Russia.

The tone of the note indicated the Russian government is taking an extremely serious view of the question. What counter - measures the Soviets might have in mind could only be speculated on.

(In Denmark, the cabinet was called into extraordinary session to consider the Soviet protest. Foreign Minister Ole Bjoern Kraft declined any comment on the note.)

Sen. Nixon Not To Make Sedalia Stop October 21

Sen. Richard Nixon, GOP candidate for the vice-presidency, will not make a stop at Sedalia on his tour of seven Missouri cities Oct. 21. Also dropped from the itinerary was Jefferson City.

Both cities had previously been chosen by Nixon's headquarters in favor of five eastern state cities, but the reversal was made in a tentative schedule release Wednesday night by A. D. 'Bud' Welsh. Missouri national GOP committeeman.

The new schedule sends Nixon on a morning motorcade to Festus, Crystal City, Farmington, Fredericktown and Cape Girardeau. He will fly from Cape Girardeau to Springfield for an afternoon or early evening appearance and then fly on to Joplin for a final Missouri appearance that night.

KC Terminal Switchmen Go On Strike

Rail Operations Are Tied Up Today By Union Walkout

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Operations at the Kansas City Railroad Terminal were crippled today by a strike of switchmen.

Freight trains were halted on the 21 trunk lines using the facilities of the Kansas City Terminal Railway Co. Supervisory personnel were attempting to move passenger and mail trains.

Terminal employes operate trains while they are on terminal property.

Bill Allen, vice-chairman of the Switchmen of North America Lodge No. 102, said locomotive enginemen and firemen were observing the picket lines.

Breternitz said the company had received no official notice of the strike beforehand.

While the union officials said violations of the existing contract by the company had caused the walkout, Breternitz said the strike was caused by four interpretations of employe disputes that should be handled by the national railway board.

An official of the Union Pacific said passenger service on the line had not been affected yet. He said freight operations would be curtailed.

"We can reroute practically all our freight business around the yard here to avoid congestion. There may be a delay, however."

A spokesman for the Wabash said the first passenger train from St. Louis was routed to the North Kansas City yard and passengers taken to the Union Station in busses. He said this practice would be continued for the duration of the strike.

The North Kansas City yards are not a part of the Terminal system.

The Burlington railroad also is using its North Kansas City station.

The switchmen went on strike unexpectedly at 6 a. m., just before the heavy passenger train movement through the yards. Picket lines were thrown up at key entrance points to the yards and the Union Station.

They had taken a strike vote after break down of month-long negotiations over eight alleged contract violations.

Allen said the major point was the refusal of the company to honor provisions of the contract calling for payment of time and a half to extra men called back for a second tour of duty within 22½ hours of the start of the original tour.

An official in the operating department of the Terminal said freight train operations had been suspended, but "We'll try to move the passenger trains through."

Miners' Dispute Settled to End One Day Walkout

FT. SMITH (AP)—Three coal mines in this area were working last night after a union official cleared up a misunderstanding that kept 600 miners from the pits yesterday morning.

The miners from a fourth idle mine, the E. H. Noel Coal Co., at Excelsior, Ark., will return to work tonight.

David Fowler, president of District 21, United Mine Workers of America, said today that the day of idleness was caused by a misunderstanding concerning contracts with the coal operators.

Fowler, who was in Washington yesterday said he wired the miners to go back to work when he was informed they had not reported for their shifts.

A spokesman for the operators said yesterday that the union and operators had decided about three weeks ago to keep the mines working until the contracts in the east and south were negotiate and then use those as a basis for a contract in this area. A meeting to negotiate the new contract is slated for Muskogee, Okla. tomorrow.

The old contract for area mines in Oklahoma and Arkansas expired at midnight Sept. 30.

Father Shoots His Daughter, Himself

MIAMI, Fla (AP) — A father whom neighbors described as "terribly strict" shot and killed his 16-year-old daughter when she returned home last night, then fatally wounded himself, police reported.

Dr. E. F. Lasseter said Betty Moore, pretty junior at Miami Edison high school, was shot down in the hallway of her bungalow home.

Lasseter identified the father as John R. Moore, about 50, who shot himself in the head and died an hour later at a hospital.

On Moore's dresser, Lasseter said, was a penciled note written on the holder of a photograph of Betty:

"My Darling Baby. I love you too much to have you go through the hardship of life on this old earth. Your Dad, The Dog."

Another note found in the father's bedroom carried these instructions, Lasseter said:

"No funeral, no embalming, no expense whatsoever, just cremate and throw the ashes in the canal, and forget it all."

C. of C. Has 2-Point Program To Get Voters Out to Vote

Plans on what the Chamber of Commerce could do to get out the vote in the coming election in an effort to elect men of sound principles to office, regardless of politics, were presented Thursday noon at a meeting of the national affairs committee of the Sedalia C. of C.

Bill Bird, of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who has made a number of talks in Sedalia, outlined a program. There are two things to be considered in the coming campaign, Mr. Bird said: a community wide campaign to get people to vote and an informed public on the issues.

The Chamber of Commerce fits into the picture by getting the people out to vote, Mr. Bird said, and he suggested that a group of members of the Chamber of Commerce volunteer to write letters to the Chamber of them of the importance of their vote in the campaign and urging them also to have members of their families, who are eligible, to go to the poles.

Then, Mr. Bird continued, there should be a group to telephone a list of members and finally a post card campaign on the last day.

Organizations should be asked to cooperate to provide transportation, baby sitters and other things that would encourage people to vote and take care of problems that prevent people from going to the poles, he said.

Mrs. J. F. Schumacher, suggested that people in the business district wear ribbons on which are printed, "Are You Registered", prior to the end of the time for registering, and then "Are you going to vote" until election.

Mrs. A. A. Studebaker announced that the Girl Scouts would cooperate in any way possible to help the national affairs committee get the vote out anad stated she would like to see other organizations do likewise.

Chester A. Wolfe, chairman of the national affairs committee, stated that Chester A. Bown, executive manager of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, had accepted a challenge from the Joplin Chamber of Commerce on getting out the vote this year. Mr. Brown is now in University of Kansas Medical Center, Kansas City, Kan., where he underwent an operation. Mr. Wolfe reminded the committee that they were going to have to work because they could not le Mr. Brown down— it is necessary to do the job and beat Joplin, he said.

Mr. Bird introduced two men, Bill Stevens, Memphis, Tenn., and Jim Roberts, Plainview, Tex.:, who are new program advisors for the United States Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Roberts he stated, will work in the area.

The meeting was held in the Magnolia Room of the Bothwell Hotel.

Rioting A Prelude To Escape

Thousands of Red Prisoners Planned To Flee Island, US Officers Report

CHEDU ISLAND, Korea (AP)—Yesterday's rioting on this prisoner of war island was only a prelude to a planned mass escape of 5,884 Chinese Reds, U. S. authorities said today.

Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren told correspondents the riot was to be a signal for a mass breakout but U. S. troops moved in and "broke the back of the planned revolt."

Fifty six of the rioting prisoners were killed or fatally wounded. More than 100 others were injured.

Herren pointed out that the breakout was planned for Oct. 1, the third anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Communist regime.

Col. Richard D. Boerem, Ontario, Calif., commander of the Cheju POW camp, said POW command headquarters of the planned break last Aug. 24th and immediately began making plans to stop it.

He said that the diehard reds in Compound Seven were supposed to throw rocks at American guards as a signal for Reds in the nine other compounds of the camp to break out.

Yesterday the rioting Communists in compound seven threw a barrage of rocks at 80 U. S. infantrymen and it was then that the American troops retaliated with a volley of fire.

Borem said he had told the troops not to shoot unless attacked.

The soldiers stormed into the compound with bayonets and rifles and routed the defiant Chinese from behind walls and from out of buildings and trenches.

The Reds fought back with rocks, sharpened tent pole spears, crude knives and barbed wire flails.

Borem said some Red prisoners were so fanatic they "kept coming after they were hit once and had to be shot again before they would stop."

Today U. S. troops entered and searched every POW compound on the island. The Army said there were no incidents and the situation was stable.

(At Panmunjom the Communist armistice delegation protested "this major incident of massacre" in a note to Maj. Gen. William K. Harrison, chief U. N. negotiator.

(North Korean Gen. Nam Il, top Red negotiator, told the Allies "your side will have to bear full responsibility for all the consequences arising from this grave incident.") hundred improvised weapons.

Boerem said he called for the U. S. troops when the Reds refused to lower their homemade flags or to stand still for a routine head count.

The soldiers were stoned as they marched to the compound gates and again when they cut open a gate which the Reds had wired shut.

At the second barrage of rocks, the troops opened fire and stormed into the compound.

The battle lasted just 15 minutes. Prisoners in the other compounds quickly hauled down their flags and stopped singing, Boerem said.

Drop In Number Of New Polio Cases Last Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — The public Health Service said today there was a drop of 16 per cent in new cases of infantile paralysis reported last week and said this probably marked the turning point in the record outbreak.

There were 3,538 new cases listed for the week ended Sept. 27, compared with a corrected total of 4,191 for the week ended Sept. 20.

New records were set for five straight weeks up to Sept. 20.

They pushed the total cases for the "disease year" — which started about the first of April — far ahead of the poliomyelitis cases reported in the similar period of 1949, the previous record year.

Through last week the total for this "disease year" was 37,826, compared with 32,106 for the similar 1949 period and 19,207 for the same span last year.

This year's total since Jan. 1 reached 39,146 on Sept. 27. The comparative figure for 1949 was not available.

"Descreases were noted in all regions of the country."

Taft to Tell GOP Can Win If Work Hard

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft will tell Republicans in Ohio three biggest cities this week the GOP can win the Nov. 4 election, but only by hard work.

Last night he told a Young GOP rally here the party "can't afford the overconfidence of 1948."

The coming election is "the final decision," he said, on "whether we are going to go ahead on the principles of the last 165 years or go so far toward socialization and government control that we can't turn back."

The people realize the importance of this election, Taft said, and "are more interested in politics than they ever have been in the past."

The senator said record voter registrations show "a determination on the part of our people to rise up and eliminate from our government the socialization the people resent from the bottom of their hearts."

But, Taft added, GOP party workers can profit from this interest only by hard labor and a determined election day effort to see that their registered voters go to the polls.

Taft viewed Ohio as a pivotal state in a close presidential contest. He said a majority in the great state of Ohio may be the final determining factor in the election of a Republican president.

"We can win the election," he said. "Reports are encouraging. People are interested. Conservative estimates are that 3½ million will vote in Ohio—the largest vote in history."

Bidding for that vote on behalf of the Republican ticket which six months ago he was fighting to head, Taft speaks in Columbus tonight at a county GOP campaign opener and again tomorrow night. Monday he appears at his home city of Cincinnati.

He campaigned in Ohio last week with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who defeated him for the party's nomination, but in those appearances he made a special effort to keep in the background.

At the end of his current 19-state tour, which will take him to all parts of the country except the southeast and New England, Taft will return to campaign in Ohio for three more days on the weekend before election.

Admitting his loss of the nomination "was a disappointment to me, naturally, and to my friends," Taft made it clear to his audience he wanted them to join in an all-out crusade against "the danger to liberty today—big government."

Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic presidential candidate, is "no different from Truman in his philosophy of government," Taft said. "Under that philosophy", he added, "the government will plan your life and my life; the government will tell us what we should do."

Under recent Democratic administrations, he said, "the idea of emergency power—something like the divine right of kings—has permeated our government."

"Topping the spending is one remedy for the present condition," Taft said, and added this "Stevenson says you can't do, because the Russians have imposed it on us."

"No matter what Democrat is elected, he can't clean out the bureaucrats," Taft asserted.

Progressives to Win?

NEW YORK (AP)—Vincent Hallinan, Progressive party candidate for president, told a rally last night that "the Korean war has so altered people's thinking that they are ready to embrace our party."

Extensive shipbuilding activities have been resumed in the port of Leghorn, Italy.

Time Is Short for Leonardo's 'Last Supper'

"THE LAST SUPPER," the world-renowned painting by Leonardi da Vinci on the wall of an Italian monastery, faces progressive disintegration. It is 450 yearsold.

By CARLO FENOGLIO

MILAN — The life of Leonardo's famed "Last Supper" is going to be a short one, Prof. Luigi Crema, superintendent of monuments of Lombardy, has announced.

Some 150,000 persons every year ring the bell at the monastery of Santa Maria delle Grazie in Milan to see Leonardo's great masterpiece.

It is commonly called a fresco, but any art expert will tell you it is a tempera. The difference is that frescos are painted on damp mortar and the colors penetrate deep. Tempera is painted on a dry wall. Its colors fade much faster.

Every attempt to preserve the painting for as long as possible is being made but very little is left of the beautiful work. The fifth centenary this year of Leonardo's birth has marked the beginning of the painting's last period.

The painting has decayed through the centuries. World War II gave it another blow. A group of bombs completely destroyed the roof and one of the walls of the dining hall of the monastery. When the friars inspected the damage and saw the wall of the "Last Supper" covered with dust and the roof's beams hanging down, they thought the painting was destroyed.

The painting, exposed to open air, absorbed humidity and dust for several seasons, and was covered by a thin and harmful layer of dirt. The wall itself, soaked in dampness, caused some concern.

While technicians and experts were trying to decide what to do, an extraordinary thing happened. After masons had rebuilt the roof and the wall, "The Last Supper" was slowly dried up. The experts decided that the wall was not very damp after all, and the humidity had been absorbed by the 450-year-old painting when exposed to open air.

Painting Cleaned

"The Last Supper" was then submitted to a first cleaning, by restorer Prof. Mario Pelliccioli, and later, after an inspection by experts from the Education Ministry, to a second and more accurate cleaning.

The cleaning consists mostly in removing the dust from the numberless cracks produced by the centuries and the humidity, so that the painting will show its original colors — those which Leonardo painted.

To guarantee a dry temperature in the hall, the floor is fitted with radiating panels.

The "Last Supper" represents the most dramatic moment in Christ's last supper with his 12 disciples. It is the moment in which Christ says with lowered eyelids "one of you will betray me."

To these words all the Apostles express indignation and astonishment. Only one withdraws as though struck by a thunderbolt — Judas.

From the expression of Christ's infinite resignation to the varying expressions of the Apostles and the landscape beyond them, everything was painted with utmost care.

But, ironically, this masterpiece of art and thought was born with a flaw. And because of that its life will be shorter than if it had been made according to rule.

The plaster used by Leonardo in Santa Maria delle Grazie began to shift soon after it was completed for unknown causes. The result was a continued cracking of the colors.

Restoration Started

Toward the middle of the 16th century the painters noted this and started a work of restoration. It was useless. In addition, all remedies used by ancient painters appeared to be more harmful than beneficient.

Finally, the "Last Supper" was restored with oil paints. The drawing and the original colors by Leonardo were respected faithfully but the oil, which Leonardo did not use in his tempera, made the painting heavier.

In 1908 Cavenaghi restored the painting completely. He worked for over one year during which he removed all the oil which had been put over the painting and revealed Leonardo's original tempera. Unfortunately, it was seriously cracked and had disappeared completely in some parts.

But technicians and connoisseurs agreed that it was much better to see the original painting, even if incomplete rather than a complete retouching by scores of unknown artists. The same idea guides the present cleaning work.

Kathryn Brown Joins The Cleopatra Club At Park College

"Rush week" at Park College, Parkville, wound up with each member of the freshmen class joining one of the five pairs of clubs which for 76 years have replaced Greek-letter fraternities. After a series of entertainments by the individual clubs, Kathryn Brown, 915 West Broadway, Sedalia, became a member of the Cleopatra club.

Each Park College student belongs to one of these clubs. The college's sports and social programs revolve around the club system, with each club having athletic teams, several presenting an annual revue and all holding formal and informal dances. In action, the five social clubs work out to ten, as each is a "brother-sister" organization, with one division for men and another for women.

Miss Brown's club is always paired in campus activities with the Anthonies, the "brother" club for men.

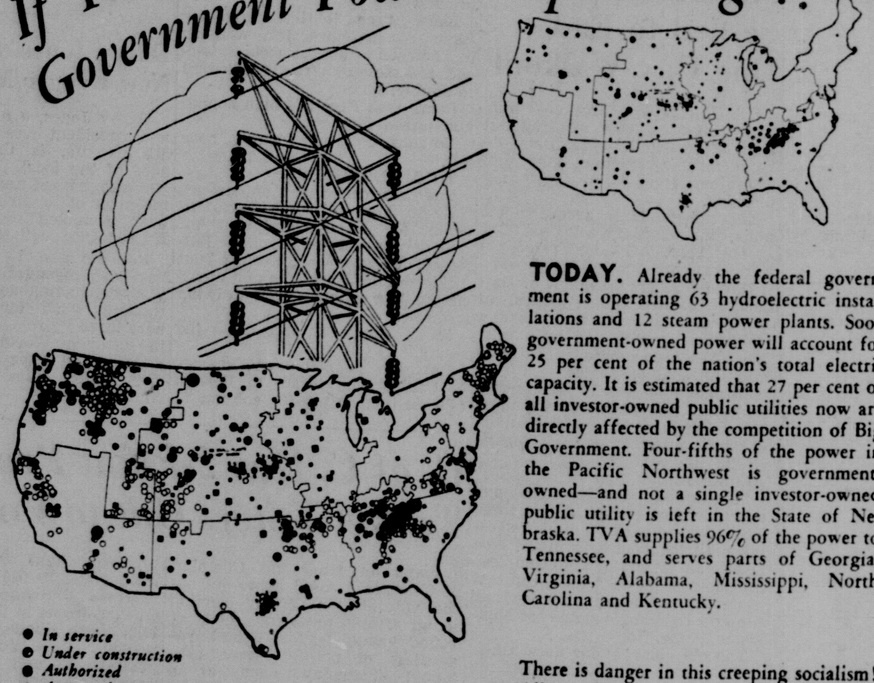
If You Don't Believe Government Power is Spreading...



TODAY. Already the federal government is operating 63 hydroelectric installations and 12 steam power plants. Soon government-owned power will account for 25 per cent of the nation's total electric capacity. It is estimated that 27 per cent of all investor-owned public utilities now are directly affected by the competition of Big Government. Four-fifths of the power in the Pacific Northwest is government-owned—and not a single investor-owned public utility is left in the State of Nebraska. TVA supplies 96% of the power to Tennessee, and serves parts of Georgia, Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina and Kentucky.

● Authorized
○ Approved or proposed
S State Project federally financed
C County Project federally financed
P Penstock on federally financed project
■ REA in service
◧ REA under construction
■ REA authorized
□ REA approved or proposed

There is danger in this creeping socialism! All too often, government-owned transmission lines duplicate those of investor-owned public utilities already in service. The resulting economic waste is huge when you consider not only the cost of the original projects to the taxpayers, but the ultimate loss of more than a billion dollars a year in federal, state and local taxes now paid by America's electric companies. It's time to think economy . . . talk economy! Here in Missouri, the electric companies have always provided cheap, dependable electric power. These investor-owned companies will continue to do so . . . if they are not forced out of business by government-owned power projects which are subsidized with your tax dollars.

WHAT LIES AHEAD. Authorized federal generating projects now add up to more than $10 billion, but the cost will probably be higher. Proposed government projects, shown on the map, would cost an additional $35 billion. Expansion of government-owned power projects bulk large in an ambitious $70 billion water resources program, proposed by Washington planners.

Found a Skirt? Girl Who Lost It Spent First Pay to Buy It

If anybody found a new light bluish-green corduroy skirt in their car, still in the wrapping it came in from the store, there is a 16-year-old girl who would be mighty happy to have it back.

The girl is Barbara Wolf, 1709 South Summit, who had just received her first pay check from her first job at Trading Post at Broadway and Marshall. Wednesday Barbara cashed her check and bought herself a new skirt and she put it in the wrong car. The car that she thought she was putting it in was her brother-in-law's, but she met her sister down the street and was told that the car was parked near the middle of the block in the 100 block on East Third — there had been no mention of which side of the street.

The girl picked out a car the color of her brother-in-law's car, a light green, and, certain she had the right car, tossed the skirt in the back seat and even got in and sat in the car for a little while. Then she left for a few minutes and while she was gone the owner of the car came and drove it away.

When she returned with her sister to her car she saw her mistake — but it was too late. The owner of the other car, which was a new car, and was either a Dodge or a Plymouth, had no way of knowing who the skirt, that had been purchased at the Thrifty Shop, belonged to — so couldn't return it. But the little girl, who made her first purchase with her very own money (she had earned at her first job) would be very grateful if whoever found her skirt would return it to her or call her so she could pick it up.

New Glass In A-Bombed Church

YOKOHAMA (AP) — The Urakami Catholic Church in atom-bombed Nagasaki finally got its stained glass windows — duty free.

The stained glass was a gift from friends in France who wanted to restore the chancel window in the church. It was blasted by the second A-bomb on Aug. 9, 1945.

Mounting MIG Losses in Korea Is First War Phase to Hit Russia Hard

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

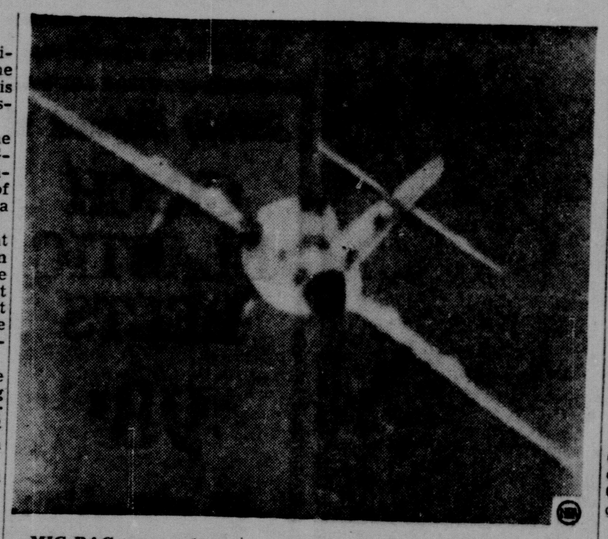
WASHINGTON — An intelligence report estimates that the stepped-up air war in Korea is now eating up one-third of Russia's jet fighter production.

If the sudden upsurge in the number of Russian-made MIG-15s being destroyed in Korea continues, it might in the opinion of Pentagon experts pressure Russia to agree to a truce.

The heavy MIG loss, they point out, is the first cost in the Korean conflict which has really hurt the Russians. The cost is so high that the Reds have had to interrupt their program for converting the satellite air forces to jets, according to our intelligence.

Latest Air Force figures put the average number of MIGs being shot down at more than 40 per week. At this rate the total MIG bag for the Air Force will soon exceed 500.

Significance of this development is the belief that Russia was feeling no pain over the Chinese and North Korean losses nor over the expenditure of surplus Russian arms and equipment for which the Chinese and North Koreans had to pay cash on the barrel head.



MIG BAG goes up by one, as this Russian fighter is caught by a Sabrejet's guns and begins to fall. The camera, synchronized with the guns, caught it at the moment it was hit.

The supplying of MIGs, however, is reported to be a very different situation. Up until the current rate was set of one U. S. Sabrejet to 15 MIGs shot down the belief was that the Russians considered that loss worth the combat experience which the Red Chinese Air Force was getting. Now it may be a different story.

The Russians aren't getting paid for the MIGs because the Red Chinese just can't afford it. Thus, it's the one cost of the Korean War which the Russians are paying out of their own pockets. And it's not cheap.

A MIG is believed to cost about two-thirds of the price of a Sabre. That puts the cost of those being shot down in Korea at many million dollars a week, in terms of American dollars.

As one Air Force expert states it:

"If the Russians can be influenced to agree to a truce in Korea on the basis of increasing costs to them of the fighting there, then we are giving them the most potent reason for peace in the sky over Korea right now."

The most disturbing fact to the U. S. Air Force is that in spite of the heavy advantage which American pilots seem to have now, the Chinese Communist Air Force and pilots are steadily improving.

One of the reasons for the high MIG loss, it is claimed, is the Russian insistence that the Chinese pilots use up all the old MIGs first before any newer models are delivered to them.

There have been consistent reports recently that a few new-type MIGs have been seen over Korea. But they have not been showing up in any quantity because of the Russian theory of using up old equipment before the new.

On over-all figures, the best intelligence reports reveal that Russia today has 20,000 first line aircraft in organized units, with the same number in reserve. Total U. S. military planes now number approximately 30,000 in all categories. But only 40 per cent of these are combat types.

Princeton Alumni Paper Gives Short Mention to Adlai

PRINCETON, N. J., (AP) — The latest issue of the Princeton Alumni Weekly contains this folksy item:

"According to a newspaper clipping, Ad Stevenson was put up for president (U. S.) by a group of citizens in Chicago last July."

Ad Stevenson, better known outside the Princeton class of 1922 as Adlai, is the Democratic presidential nominee.

Jarvinen Acquitted In Lattimore Case

SEATTLE (AP)—A Federal Court jury acquitted Harry A. Jarvinen last night in the case of the false tip about Owen Lattimore's travel plans.

Jarvinen, 32-year-old Finnish veteran of the finnish-Russian War, was accused of falsely telling federal agents that Lattimore had arranged for a trip to Russia last summer.

The case gained wide attention after the State Department lowered the travel bars against the controversial Johns Hopkins University professor, then apologized publicly to him after determining the tip was false.

Jarvinen is the manager of a Seattle travel agency.

Ragar Speaks In Assembly

Virgil Ragar, chairman of the Smith-Cotton PTA membership committee, spoke before the senior high school assembly Wednesday morning. He requested the students to urge their parents to join the PTA and gave details of the competition for PTA membership which will be held between the various classes.

Gene Watts and his orchestra then presented several numbers. They also accompanied Chester O'Bannon, who sang two solos. Members of the orchestra included, in addition to Gene, Nancy Cook, Judy Case, Larry Englund, Carlyle Hume and Jack Isgur.

Dick Rucker, president of the senior student council, presided over the assembly.

Following the senior assembly, the program was repeated for the junior high school with Van Van Dyne, president of the junior council, presiding.

Tag Day Is Friday

The Smith-Cotton student councils are sponsoring a Tag Day at the school Friday. Each student is requested to wear a gold or black tag to show his support of the Tiger football team in their night game against North Kansas City.

Following the game a dance-party will be held in the school cafeteria.

Firearms Collector Wounded In Testing A Home-made Rifle

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jack L. Vaught, who makes and collects firearms as a hobby, was injured dangerously late yesterday while testing a home-made high-powered rifle in his basement.

Deputy Sheriff William Delahunty said Vaught fired the .22-250 caliber rifle at a steel bar from a distance of 35 feet. Fragments of the steel bar apparently ricocheted from the basement wall and struck Vaught, the deputy said.

The victim underwent an emergency operation to remove a fragment from his skull.

Vaught's son, Larry, 6, and his father, Leroy Vaught, Venice, California, suffered minor abrasians from smaller fragments.

How Would You Like These Banker's Hours?

COLD CASH FOR FROZEN NORTH is houseed in this shack, bank branch at a new aluminum refinery at Kitimat, British Columbia.

By JAMES MONTAGNES
NEA Special Correspondent

TORONTO — (NEA) — "Banker's hours" has long been a synonym for short working day. In Canada, bankers have other ideas.

Take young Ed Muir, for example.

An accountant in a Vancouver bank, he was uprooted to become acting manager of a branch in the middle of nowhere—400 miles north of Vancouver at Kemano, where a big electric power development is underway on a mountainous coast.

To serve several thousand workmen who are his customers, Muir may start out from his quonsethut headquarters at 6 o'clock on a Sunday morning in a blinding snowstorm, as he did one day last Winter, and drive 10 miles to meet the supply boat.

On that Sunday, there was a 60 - mile wind off shore. The steamer couldn't get into the dock, so Muir chased the steamer in a tug, delivered his mail and money orders by climbing a rope ladder, then hauled his heavy money bags back down the swaying ladder. His "banker's hours" ended late that night back in Kemano.

If banker Muir isn't meeting the steamer, he's facing equally rugged conditions in a motor boat getting his money bags from a bobbing flying boat.

Canada's young bankers look forward to rapid promotion as managers these days as new frontiers like Kemano open up.

This past Summer two of them boarded a plane at Edmonton, their baggage loaded with the money to go into business. A thousand miles to the north, they were landed at the Canadian government's uranium mine at Port Radium on Great Bear Lake, just south of the Artic Circle. Their branch bank is the most northern one in Canada.

On the Alantic coast, on the Gaspe Peninsula, a couple of young bankers were given three small rooms in a contractor's bunkhouse—one to bank in, the other two to live in. They'll send out money orders for 500 workmen at the camp and handle financial business for the contractors with the few woodsmen and farmers in this isolated copper area.

The air age has made frontier banking life a lot more attractive than it used to be, despite the adventures managers like Muir face.

BANKER ED MUIR pursues his money on a rope ladder

Only a few years ago, bankers assigned to branches at new gold camps in the sub-Artic spent the Winters in a tent. Log cabin mining and lumber camps. And banks are not uncommon in new mining and lumber camps and not so long ago, bankers went into new territory by canoe.

RED'S FINAL RESTING PLACE—A UN soldier points out the grave of the only known Russian soldier to have died in the Korean war. The Russian, Lt. Mishin Gennady, was shot down by U. S. Navy planes early in September when he bore into a UN air formation and opened fire. The pilot is located in the "non belligerent" area of the UN military cemetery in Pusan.

Truman Sees Choice Between Liberal and Pullback Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman, in a nation-wide radio broadcast, pictured the Nov. 4 election as a choice between the "liberal program" of the Democrats and the "pullback program" of the Republicans.

The 15-minute program over ABC last night had been recorded by Truman at the White House before he embarked on his whistle-stop tour.

The broadcast was the first of five, featuring top names of the Democratic party and show business, being sponsored weekly by the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

"The way we mark our ballots in November," the President said, "will determine, in large measure, whether we have good times or bad times, whether we have good wages or poor wages, whether we have runaway prices or stable prices, whether we have a strong national defense or a weak national defense, whether our children will have opportunities to get ahead or whether they will face the kind of economic collapse and confusion that we ourselves faced in the early 1930s."

Truman said Republicans would consider a GOP victory next month as "a blank check to tear down the things that have been built up in spite of their opposition in the last 20 years."

He said Republicans had started a tearing-down program in the 80th Congress, which they controlled.

"But I was in the White House and I was able to hold them back," Truman said. "If a Republican president were in the White House, the people would have no defense against them."

Tour of Homes, Gardens Sunday In Lexington

LEXINGTON, Mo. — A heavy influx of visitors from a wide area is expected here next Sunday afternoon, when the Garden club will hold a tour of old homes and gardens throughout the city.

The tour, to be held in the afternoon, will include visits to ten Lexington homes and the Lafayette county courthouse.

A large crowd is expected if the weather is cooperative.

Members of the Garden club have been exploring old trunks stored in their attics for costumes of the last century which they plan to wear in connection with the tour.

During this week, too, many store windows in downtown Lexington have been filled with displays of century - old antiques, clothing, furniture, pictures and other mementoes of bygone days in this county seat town.

Every home to be shown during the day is owned by a member of the Garden club. Every house but one on the itinerary is of Civil War vintage.

All members of the club will be dressed in costumes of the period that day. They will be stationed at the homes to act as guides and hostesses.

Tea will be served from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Maib and Houx home, one of the ten included in the tour. A program of Negro spirituals by a group of Lexington colored singers will be presented at the tea.

Tickets are available at the Lexington Chamber of Commerce office in the courthouse, where the tour starts.

The tour was featured in an illustrated story in the Kansas City Star on Sunday, September 21. An editor of Curtis Publishing Co., Philadelphia, also has indicated an interest in the tour.

The Lexington Garden club was organized in the spring of 1950 with the general objective of beautifying the community, particularly the sections having historical significance.

The club hopes to make the fall tour an annual event.

Heavy Fight On Ground, In Air Today

One MIG Downed; Troops Near Crest Of Red-Held Hill

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — U S. and Communist jets tangled in October's first air battles today. The Fifth Air Force said one Red MIG-51 was shot down and two were damaged.

The day's heaviest ground fighting flared on the east - central front. South Korean infantrymen fought to within 50 yards of the top of Wire Hill, captured by Chinese Reds Monday.

Late reports from Eighth Army headquarters said heavy fighting was still in progress.

The Air Force announced that Allied planes shot down 107 Russian - built MIG-15s in the past three months. U. N. losses in the air battles were seven U. S. F-86 Sabres and three F-84 Thunderjets. Sixty-two of the MIGS were downed in September.

Today's MIG kill came in an air battle between two Sabres and four MIGS southwest of Sinuiju, deep in northwest Korea.

B-26 Invander bombers hunted Communist supply vehicles last night and pilots reported 50 destroyed. They also reported knocking out two locomotives and 10 boxcars and damaging another locomotive and 10 boxcars on the east coast rail line far behind the lines.

South Korean infantrymen stormed Wire Hill last night, but were beaten off in hand-to-hand fighting. The attack was renewed at daybreak against a heavy Chinese artillery and mortar bararge.

Allied forces defending a hotly-contest hill east of Kumsong on the central front beat off a heavy pre-dawn attack by Chinese troops. The U. N. infantrymen hurled back 160 reds in a 40-minute fight.

On the western front an Allied patrol fought its way out of a Chinese trap, inflicting an estimated 30 Red casualties.

Eighth Army headquarters announced Allied ground forces inflicted 14,114 casualties on the communists in September—the second highest monthly total of the year.

The toll was topped only in January when Reds killed, wounded or captured were listed as 16,484. Of the September total 8,123 Communists were killed, 5,879 wounded and 112 were taken prisoner.

S-C Tigers Play NKC Here Friday At Liberty Park

Friday night the Smith-Cotton Tigers will go into action against their toughest opponent, North Kansas City Hornets. The kick-off is scheduled for 8 p. m.

The Tiger lineup probably will see several changes as to starters. Darrell Ford is being placed at right guard, replacing Bob Lien, who was injured in the Kemper game; Benny Neal shifting from right end to right guard, with Jim Bob Shepherd taking over the right end position.

Coach Ralph Dow in checking over his players today said he felt at present the changes announced would be all necessary at this time. Practice has been hard and not too good on some of the boys who were bruised up two weeks ago.

From all indications, although North Town has suffered defeats in their first two games, their team stacks up somewhat stronger than the Tigers. First, they outweigh Sedalia more than six pounds to the man. Second, the opposition they have played and lost to this year are considered the best teams in their locale.

The Hornets have dropped a game to Southeast of Kansas City and St. Joseph Benton, both of which are boasting their strongest teams in years.

The Tigers the past week worked out a skull practice session last Tuesday, and results have been gratifying according to Dow. The team clicked in practice Wednesday from information obtained at skull practice.

The starting lineup will be announced Friday.

21 Lawyers Refuse Plea For Red Data

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After hearing 21 Los Angeles area lawyers refuse its request for information about communism, the House Un-American Activities Committee turns its spotlight on other professions today.

The committee is investigating subversive influences in the professions, including doctors and film, television and radio employes.

All the attorneys challenged the committee's right to subpoena them or to question their personal beliefs. Twenty refused to answer questions concerning Communist party membership. In the case of one, the issue of membership was withdrawn.

All cited the First and Fifth Constitutional Amendments and some the Fourth, Ninth and 10th Amendments.

One witness, Atty. Jack Frankel, said the committee had intimidated city, state and federal employes and even had harmed the movie business.

"There hasn't been a decent motion picture made since this committee started to function," he charged. "They don't dare express a decent idea—they don't express any ideas. In this effect the committee has perpetrated the lie that 'movies are better than ever.'"

Another witness, lawyer Frank Pestana, asked what he knew about a Communist party cell of attorneys here, replied: "I would be a traitor if I answered that question."

Meantime, pickets and counter-pickets, marching for the second day outside the Federal Building, site of the hearings, scuffled over an American Flag.

One of the anti-Communist pickets, Charles Gore, 28, was carrying the flag. He said that one of the persons picketing the committee hearings grabbed it. A colleague of Gore, Frank Gilbert, retrieved it. Police quelled the disturbance without making an arrest.

Mystery of Rock Throwing Commies Is Still Puzzling

WITH U.S. MARINES, Korea (AP) — Leathernecks captured a Communist scout a few days ago and got the lowdown on the recent flurry of rock-throwing.

Marines bumped into a four-man Red patrol, said Capt. Ramon J. A. Gibson, Jacksonville, Fla.

"The Commies tried to get away but we captured one of them. He told us that three members of the rock patrol carried only stones. The fourth man was armed with a rifle."

The Reds would sneak up on Allied positions and throw their rocks, hoping to draw fire. Then Communist mortars would open up.

"The first couple of times rocks started bouncing off our bunkers we figured it was some wise guy," Gibson said. "Now we wonder whether the Commie with the rifle was along to protect the three rock throwers or to keep them in there pitching."

Venezuela Crushes Latest of Uprisings

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Venezuela's government says it has crushed the latest in a series of recent uprisings after a 2½-hour fight in which three rebels—including the leader—were killed and 13 wounded.

Rebels, led by a group of Army officers, seized temporary control of police headquarters at Maturin in Eastern Venezuela at dawn yesterday but were ousted by loyal troops soon afterward, a general staff communique said. Maturin is the capital of Monagas State.

The latest skirmish raised to 13 the number of persons killed since Monday, when three unsuccessful attempts were put down in Portuguesa State.

Truce Site Balloons Blown Away by Storm

MUNSAN (AP)—Two of the four balloons marking the Panmunjom neutral zone where truce negotiations occasionally sputter along were snapped loose today by a sudden storm.

They floated south toward Allied lines.

American farmers grow about 18 million acres of alfalfa. Fifty years ago only two million acres were grown.

FALSE SMILE—Mrs. Shirley Opoka, of Cleveland, Ohio, got quite a shock when she noticed what appeared to be a fiendish grin on the face of Brownie, her cocker spaniel. Investigation showed that Brownie had come up with somebody's lost falsies. The published story brought 50 phone calls from people who had lost their choppers. One was from the owner, a neighbor.

PIN WHEEL—Forrest Parker hung precariously from his midget auto racer as it nosed up and over after skidding on a turn at a Bedford, O., track. The 31-year-old Covington, Ind., driver suffered skull, shoulder and arm fractures. (NEA)

A New Kite Is Born

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—Santa Claus, that talented toy designer, is getting an assist this year from applied aerodynamics and a man with a wind tunnel.

The result of all this scientific work is a new kind of kite, which Santa may be bringing to little boys by this Christmas. It's a completely new concept in flying wastepaper, and might almost make kite-flying easy on fathers.

The main feature of the new invention is that it's non-rigid, the wind tunnel man's way of saying that it has no sticks. The inventor, Francis Rogallo, of Hampton, Va., goes even further and says it's the world's first non-rigid, heavier-than-air craft.

Rogallo is chief of a wind tunnel branch of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' stability research division. Boil that down and you come to the conclusion that he is an aircraft engineer. He works at the wind tunnels at Langley Field, and, when he isn't working on some problem about stress and strain in jet planes, he's flying kites in the tunnels.

* * *

The kite interest is left over from his boyhood. He always was a kite-flyer, but he was depressed by the conventional kites' ease of breakage and inability to perform fancy maneuvers. So he began working on a new type of kite.

After many wind tunnel tests and faulty pilot models, he came up with the one he's now making, which looks like a large bandanna or a small table cloth, only it's made of plastic. Attached to the edges of the square material are 14 shroud lines that feed into the one main control line.

There's a nylon tail, to stabilize the kit, and a stick to hold the nylon line. That's the full equipment, that and a small boy to make it go.

The main body of the kite, the plastic square is limp and floppy. But with a little wind, it billows out like a parachute. Its construction, in fact, is a lot like that of a 'chute, except it's engineered to go up instead of down.

* * *

With a little practice, and favorable breezes, it can do loops, soar straight up, nose dive, or hover stationary. And it has no sticks to snap or snag the paper, and the plastic is difficult to tear. But there's still not much that can be done if you fly it into a tree.

Rogallo is making the kite in three sizes, with the largest one theoretically capable of carrying a man aloft. Nobody has yet tested out that feature, however.

Mrs. Rogallo, who has assisted her husband throughout the kite's development, is rather glad that the experimental days are over. There was a time, as research grew feverish, when the Langley Field tunnel wasn't enough.

To do tests at night, Rogallo turned the house into a wind tunnel, too. A big electric fan supplied the wind, and the doorway between the sun porch and the living room was the tunnel. Keeping some doors open and some closed made the wind rush through the residential tunnel at just the right speed for indoor kite testing.

But now the kite is a reality, and the winds have died down at the Rogallos' house.

ROGALLO AND KITE: The winds died down in the house.

Enlisted Men's Wives Win Fight With MST To See Hubbys on Ships

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Military Sea Transportation Service has bowed to the angry arguments of wives of enlisted Navy men that they are entitled to the same privileges as officers' wives.

Under a barrage of protests, MSTS withdrew directive yesterday prohibiting wives of Navy enlisted men from using guest passes to visit their husbands aboard ships at Ft. Mason, San Francisco, and the Oakland Army Base.

Mission Body To Aid After Home Burns

By Mrs. B. A. Bridges

SYRACUSE — Mrs. Norbert Langkop was hostess to the Missionary Society Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Harold Stahl presenting the program, "Japanese Puzzled People." It was a program on Japan, some of their customs. A number of Japanese articles were displayed, part of which had been brought back by service men who had served in Japan.

It was decided to make comforts for Mrs. Julia Jackson whose home burned last Monday and to give other articles to be used by her. Mrs. Leonard Stahl, vice president, presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Ray Burns.

In conclusion, the new elected president, Mrs. Kester Potter, took charge and appointed a social committee to serve this quarter, as follows: Mrs. Herbert Langkop, Mrs. Herbert Brauer and Mrs. Harold Stahl. After adjournment the hostess served refreshments to 19 members and 7 children.

The Stahl children gathered Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Wood Jr., and three sons of Harrisonville for a surprise birthday dinner for their mother, Mrs. Lera Stahl of Harrisonville. Attending from this community were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stahl, Paul Edwin and Allan. Mr. and Mrs. John Stahl, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stahl, Louisa Ann and Lane. Mr. and Mrs. Hadley Stahl and Charles Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Stahl and son John Tolbert were unable to attend. Dentist No Help

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—William B. Elliot was taking his wife to a hospital for the birth of their child when the family car broke down.

Elliot sighed with relief when a motorist who stopped identified himself as Dr. H. R. Johnson.

Mrs. Elliot had the baby in the car all right—but Dr. Johnson simply looked on helplessly.

He's a dentist.

Adlai Alters Radio and TV Speech Plans

SPRINGIELD, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower raiding his home campaign base, began today a complete overhaul of radio-television speaking plans so as to work in at least four more "fireside chats."

The Democratic presidential nominee went on about political and official business as Republican rival Eisenhower whistle-stopped toward town for an early afternoon rally and speech.

Stevenson didn't plan to go down to Court House Square to case the opposition campaign. But he did let state employes have an extra hour off at lunch time so any who wanted to could attend the rally. Eisenhower had politely turned down Stevenson's polite invitation to lunch at the Illinois Executive Mansion.

Stevenson and his aides were busy with what Porter McKeever, publicity director for Volunteers for Stevenson, said was a major reformation of the whole radio-TV program for the last month of the campaign.

There will be at least four more fireside chats during the campaign, McKeever said.

At least one, and perhaps two speeches on the issue of communism at home and abroad, he said, will be in the form of chats. The governor, McKeever said, wants to sit down and discuss the issues with the people, quietly, dispassionately and without any rabble rousing.

That was the word the publicity director was passing among Stevenson volunteers. Leaders of the volunteers from some 30 states were closing out today a rally of their own aimed largely at swinging the independent vote behind the Stevenson banner.

Members of the Stevenson high command said the increasing emphasis on straight-to-the-people television and radio talks is a direct outgrowth of the response to Stevenson's first fireside chat from Chicago Monday night.

It is not, they said, an effort to match what they described as a two-million-dollar plan by which the Republicans hope to "saturate" radio and TV sets in the last few weeks of the campaign and swing 12 states and the election to Gen. Eisenhower.

George Ball, Washington D. C., lawyer and executive director of the Volunteers for Stevenson, distributed yesterday copies of a plan he said the GOP has adopted to present "Eisenhower every hour on the hour" in 49 normally democratic counties in the 12 states.

The air, Ball said, "will be thick with political soap suds and gooey with tasteless bubble gum" from a "super collossal, multimillion-dollar production" designed to sell candidates like soap or hair tonic or tooth-paste.

In New York, however, Rosser Reeves, an advertising agency executive, said he had the suggested plan drawn up but it later was discarded as not feasible because the desired radio and TV spots are not for sale and the money is not available.

Reeves said the Citizens for Eisenhower organization is "hoping to run several hundred thousand dollars in spots if they raise the money."

Reeves is an executive of an advertising agency which was hired by the Citizens for Eisenhower organization to handle radio TV campaign plans. Word of a two-million-dollar campaign came from Michael Levin, whom Reeves described as a writer for an advertising agency who was hired "to do a research job and was paid for it."

He said Levin "is reciting figures from a suggested plan now many weeks old, a plan which is not feasible because the spots are not for sale and the money is not available."

Ball said the production will be staged on the basis of a document which says the GOP is sure of only 30 of the 126 electoral votes needed to clinch election. These "sure" votes would come from Vermont, Maine, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and New Hampshire.

The document says the GOP could win by taking in addition the 249 electoral votes of Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa and California.

While Ball said the GOP has plenty of money for what he called a "campaign of cornflakes," he said Volunteers for Stevenson are dead broke. He said it was at the last minute that they got together $55,000 to pay for Stevenson's television - radio address Monday night.

Stevenson aides said the reaction from the public to this test run with the fireside chat technique was so large and unexpected —they stood by statements that commendatory telegrams had poured in by the thousands—that the decision was reached to revamp speaking schedules completely so as to allow more chats.

In addition to sponsoring major addresses, the Volunteers for Stevenson are being asked to raise funds to buy local radio and TV time to present excerpts from Stevenson addresses in 15, five or one-minute batches.

In the view of Stevenson advisers, Monday nights' address pretty much dispelled any feeling that the Illinois governor is talking in too lofty terms for ordinary people to appreciate. They pointed to a number of telegrams saying Stevenson sounded like another Abraham Lincoln.

As they see it, the response was an impressive popular indorsement of what has become known as the "high-level" approach to the campaign.

And the Stevenson camp is fairly well determined that Stevenson's best strategy from here on in is to stick to the high level.

The Illinois governor's lieutenants are sold too on a belief that Stevenson's "rather-be-right-than president" stand is paying off.

Wilson W. Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, is one of those who is sold on that.

Wyatt made a speech on his own last night—his first of the campaign—to the Stevenson volunteers. He said the volunteer organization has made an astounding growth, with Republicans, Democrats, nonpartisan leaguers and others joining in a common cause to put Stevenson in the White House.

"The answer is simple," Wyatt said. "You and countless more like you are responding to Adlai Stevenson's efforts to talk sense to the American people.

Everybody Gives Wilbur All Low-down On Their Finances

HOMETOWN, U. S. A. (AP)—Wilbur Peble, America's average citizen, joined a group reading a notice his boss had just pinned to the office bulletin board.

The notice said:

"To all employes:

"The management has been asked whether it plans to start a gift fund to retain high caliber employes who have been offered government jobs at three times their present salary. We don't.

"A statement of the firm's financial position is attached. Attention is directed to the portions in red ink.

"The management also announces that if the employes wish to start a private fund to help the firm meet its expenses their contributions will be gratefully accepted.

(Signed) The boss

Wilbur shook his head. Later in the morning he sneaked downstairs to get a haircut on company time.

Before attacking with his shears, the barber bowed and handed him a sheet of paper covered with figures.

"What is this, Tony? asked Wilbur.

"My profit-and - loss statement for the last 20 years," replied Tony.

"What do I care about that?" said Wilbur.

"I'm tired of hearing the public say barbers are scalping them," said Tony. "You will please note my car is five years old and I am still using the same scissors I started business with. Just can't afford a new pair."

Fascinated, Wilbur studied the figures. After work he dropped into a bar across the street. With his martini the bartender held out a black notebook.

"My income tax payments for the last five years," he said. "The politicians say they are clean as a hound's tooth—well, I'm cleaner than a toothless hound. You can see no tax payment for 1949. I want to go into that in details. I worked for my brother that year, and anybody knows when he works for a member of his own family he can't even steal enough to make him owe taxes."

Still later, when he entered his neighborhood grocery store, Wilbur was dazed to see the butcher scribbling like mad.

"The housewives are demanding a complete accounting of my finances," he said. "They even started an ugly rumor that I was curing my lumbago with a mustard plaster made of $100 bills. Come with me, Mr. Peeble. I want you to know the full truth."

Wilbur followed him into the back room, where the butcher peeled to the waist. Five $10 bills were bandaged across one kidney.

"You can see how easily things get exaggerated, can't you?" demanded the butcher.

Wilbur laughed to himself all the way home.

"The political candidates now have got the voters following their bare-your - bankbook campaigns," he told his wife, and added joking:

"When are you going to give a public report on your private fur coat fund."

"Im glad you brought that up, Wilbur," said Trellis Mae. She went to a vase and shook out a small storm of paper.

"The fund is empty," she said. "But I have ten of your I. O. U.'s totaling $150. What I want to know is what you did with the money. And don't tell me you used it to fight Communism. Are you subsidizing the new blonde stenographer in your office?"

Wilbur's mouth opened and closed like a winded goldfish.

"I deny all," he said. "I will not dignify such baselss accusations with an answer. This trend toward financial nudism has got to stop somewhere, and it is going to stop right hre."

But if you think it did—well, you just don't know Trellis Mae.

The pending action was announced yesterday by Dr. Frederic Ernst, deputy superintendent of schools.

Illinois Gives Big Welcome To Ike Today

ABOARD THE EISNEHOWER SPECIAL (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower won a roaring welcome on his entry into Illinois today and he declared both World War II and the Korean War might have been avoided under better leadership.

A crowd estimated by police at 20,000 turned out at Champaign to greet Eisenhower on his presidential drive into the backyard of his Democratic opponent, Gov. Adlai Stevenson.

In his hometown of the University of Illinois, the general appealed for the support of youth and held out the promise of an administration that would "give hope" to young people. He struck at policies which he said led to the war in Korea. And then he added:

"If there must be a war in Asia —let it be Asians against Asians with the United States on the side of freedom."

The GOP presidential nominee came here with reports circulating that his temper was being fanned to hot resentment under bitter criticisms turned against him by President Truman.

The long-time friendship between the two appeared to be at a breaking point as they exchanged long-range verbal blows obviously aimed at each other's prestige.

Truman has termed the five-star general—once reported to be his choice for the Democratic presidential nomination—a "front man" for lobbyists. And he has accused Eisenhower of misleading the American people about the peril of communism after World War II.

In turn, Eisenhower has called Truman's administration a corrupt, extravagant, bumbling leadership weak in morals and in the pursuit of peace. He called it a "scandal-a-day" administration.

An Eisenhower aide said the general was ready to attack the Truman administration all through his whistle-stop push into Illinois—assailing what he has called a false wartime prosperity. He has insisted Republican leadership can bring prosperity without war.

Eisenhower's schedule on this 28-state campaign called for him to make six speeches during the day in the home state of his Democratic opponent—Gov. Adlai Stevenson—opening with a whistle-stop at Champaign and ending with a major speech tonight at Peoria at 9:30 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

Then he was due to head tomorrow into Wisconsin, the home state of GOP Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy, whose Communist-in-government charges have created a furor across the nation in both political parties.

There was considerable speculation on just how far Eisenhower would go in endorsing McCarthy and whether the two would be side by side in the rear platform appearances that the general is due to make in Wisconsin.

Privately, Eisenhower has been bitterly critical of McCarthy's attacks on his old friend, Gen. George C. Marshall, former secretary of state, former secretary of defense, and wartime chief of staff of the Army. But he has said he would support all GOP nominees for election and presumably this would include McCarthy.

The GOP candidate entered Illinois after a spectacular sweep through Michigan. The big turnouts left his lieutenants hopeful the Republicans would capture the state's 20 electoral votes by a wide margin in November.

Despite the Stevenson endorsement by both the CIO and AFL labor chiefs, Eisenhower was given warm receptions in industrial centers having big labor votes.

Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, who rode with Eisenhower across the state yesterday, said he was convinced the people had turned out in large numbers at each whistle stop because they intend to vote for Eisenhower.

"If they were just curious—just out to see a national hero," Ferguson said, "they wouldn't have been as responsive as they were. The response convinces me they intend to vote for him."

In eight stops, more than 100,000 people came to cheer the GOP candidate even though there was a threat of rain most of the day.

Eisenhower didn't mention President Truman by name in any of his speeches yesterday. But time after time he hit back with sharp criticism of the President.

He told a crowd at Lansing, the state capital:

"We are determined to pursue in the foreign field a comprehensive, firm, broad policy that will truly lead toward peace. We think there has been enough frittering around, enough indecision and enough failures in that field in the last seven years."

By limiting this criticism to the past seven years, Eisenhower was hitting directly at Truman who went into the White House after the death of President Roosevelt in 1945.

But while the central theme of these talks revolved around foreign policy, the general sprayed the field with his criticisms—hitting at high taxes, inflation, corruption in government, and the leadership in Washington.

The general offered no specific cures for the ills as he saw them.

He told each audience much the same thing he told the cheering throng at Lansing: "All that this new (Republican) administration can promise to you when this crusade has become a success is that it will approach every single problem from the standpoint of the welfare of 155 million people.

"No one section, no one class, no one group can profit at the expense of anybody else. That is good for America—that is all that can be promised. Because everything else has been promised and most of those promises were no good anyway."

At Jackson, Eisenhower left his train to drive through cheering crowds to the rock known as the "Republican Rock"—masikng the spot where the party had its founding in 1854.

From there he drove to Withington Park, where police estimated up to 14,000 people were waiting to hear him. In this talk he linked internal prosperity with foreign policy, warning the United States must stay strong and prosperous to lead the fight for peace.

Jap Liberals Win Election; Side With US

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida and his Liberal party won an absolute majority in Japan's House of Representatives, virtually assuring a continuation of this country's pro-American policies.

Voters turned their backs on the Communists, refusing to return a single Red to office in yesterday's election. In the old Diet (Parliament) the Communists had 22 seats.

With only three of the 466 seats still to be decided, the lineup was Liberals 237, Progressive 84, right-wing Socialists 57, left-wing Socialists 54, independents 19, minor parties 12, Communists 0.

The Liberal party victory was dimmed by the loss of nearly 50 of the 285 seats they controlled in the last Diet.

Although the Liberals won control of the government, leadership of the party itself still was in doubt. Observers foresaw a bitter battle between Yoshida and Ichiro Hatoyama, a tussle that might split the Liberal ranks.

Hatoyama, founder of the party, was purged from political life by Allied occupation authorities six years ago. He turned the reins of authority over to Yoshida. Now he wants them back. He and other occupation-purgees regained their right to seek office when Japan regained independence.

Yoshida followers won 103 of the Liberal seats and Hatoyama's followers won 68. Sixty-six are neutral, and both leaders will try to win them.

Balloting indicated that many voters, irked by the Communist program of anti-American violence, turned to the Socialists. The two Socialist groups won 111 seats, compared to 46 in the old Diet.

The large Socialist vote was interpreted as reflecting opposition to large-scale rearmament and too-close ties with the U.S.

Both wings advocate a foreign policy of neutrality. The leftists oppose rearmament of any kind. The rightists favor a self-defense force run by the Japanese themselves and geared to Japan's struggling economy.

Many Socialists ran on anti-American and anti-Soviet platforms.

The Liberals attracted less than half the popular vote although grabbing control of the House. Of the first 32½ million votes counted, Yoshida's party had 15,750,000 or about 48 per cent. The Communists got only 350,000 votes or 1.1 per cent. In the 1949 election the Reds got about 10 per cent of the total vote.

There Was Joy In Flatbush After Victory

BROOKLYN (AP)—Deep in the recesses of Ebbets Field, the beaten New York Yankees came to lick their wounds after the first game of the World Series, while the jubilant Brooklyn Dodgers whooped it up in their dressing room for the game they didn't figure to win.

All dressing rooms are much alike after a World Series game. The steamy clouds, sweating playing properly and they socked me. in the quarters of the winner. The well-wishers, and "Wait 'til tomorrow" guys trying to sooth the gloomy vanquished.

"I pitched a sloppy ball game," said Allie Reynolds simply as he hauled off his proud Yankee uniform. "That's all there was to it.

"I couldn't get my curve to movthe world champions as no rookie Even if we'd somehow managed to win, I'd have told you that because it's the truth."

On the first base side of Ebbets Field, things were humming, the birds were singing and all was well in Flatbush. For the first time after a first game in a World Series the beloved Bums could celebrate. For the first time in six series they had won the opener.

"I won't hesitate to use him again tomorrow (Thursday) if we need him," manager Charley Dressen was telling the scribes.

"And I may use him, too, in the late innings if it's a close ball game."

He was, naturally, talking about the 220-pound Joe Black, drafted from the relief ranks to blow down ever is expected to do.

Most attention was focused on Black, Dressen and Duke Snider, who belted one of Reynolds' pitches high, wide and handsome over the scorebard in center field in the sixth inning with one on to give Brooklyn the big lift.

Revenge was sweet for the Duke. He hit a sliding fast ball, he said, then added with a wide grin:

"I got a big charge out of it, too. In the first game of the World Series in 1949 Reynolds struck me out three times. I swore I'd get even, and I did today."

That clout into Bedford Avnue was Snider's second hit of the game. He had laced one high off the screen in right field in the fourth for a double, but didn't score. Just getting the range, of course.

Black, who had started only two games at the tail end of the National League pennant race but appeared in 54 in relief, said he had pitched better ball than against the Yankees.

"I've been faster, I know. But my curve ball was coming in there pretty well and I had control. I couldn't get my fast ball up against the lefthanders, I don't know why.

"Nervous? Was I nervous? I'm always nervous out there. My stomach was full of butterflies."

Casey Stengel, trying to mastermind his fourth straight world championship, also had a few words to say about Black.

"He's every bit the pitcher everybody said he was. I wouldn't want to say if he's as good as (Don) Newcombe. He was in trouble almost all the way, but he has pretty good control. You have to as a reliefer."

Ol' Case wasn't crying, but no laughs were detected, either.

"I thought our side did all right. They fielded all right. But you can't guess the ball that goes over the fence. They got more home runs than we did."

He was high on the sparkling fielding of Billy Cox, the Dodgers' third baseman. "There's not many players in all baseball history who've been able to field better than him.'

But Brooklyn homers did the damage, and Reynolds admitted what all pitchers know about Ebbets Field.

"You can't make any mistakes in this little ball park," he said.

Blues Lead 3 to 1 In 'Little' Series

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — The Kansas City Blues of the American Association make their bid tonight for the baseball game that could give them victory in the Little World Series.

The Blues took a series lead of three games to one over the Rochester Red Wings of the International League last night. Kansas City righthander Eddie Erautt pitched a two-hit shutout and hit a home run in the game that was called at the end of five innings because of rain. The Blues won by a 9 to 0 tally.

Jim Russell was the probable Blues choice to pitch in tonight's effort to end the best of seven series. His season record was 5-4.

Jack Faszholz had the nod from Rochester manager Harry Walker to try to keep the Red Wings in the running. Faszholz won 13 and lost 7 in the regular season. He won the second game of the junior series for Rochester, 5 to 3.

Erautt's win last night was his sixth straight post-season victory for the Association playoff champions. It ran his overall record to 27-5.

Yanks Are 7-5 Bets To Win Today's Game

NEW YORK —The New York Yankees are 7 to 5 favorites to win the second game of the World Series today and 6 to 5 to take the best-of-seven series.

Odds on the Yanks to win the series shortened after the Dodgers won yesterday's opener, 4-2. They originally were 8 to 5. The quotations on today's game were based on the Yankees starting Vic Raschi against little Carl Erskine.

Trinity Teams Carry On

HARTORD, Conn. (AP) — Little Trinity College this year is marking its Diamond Jubilee season of intercollegiate gridiron competition. Its first game was against Yale, Nov. 22, 1877 at New Haven. Yale won the game but the lads from Trinity scrapped all the way against a heavier and more experienced foe In 1949 the Bantams were New England's only untied and undefeated team.

World Series Sideline Notes

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—Even the Russians could find little to criticize in our "Beizbol" as played in the 1952 World Series.

Commissioner Ford Frick's "No rhubarb" order has made perfect gentlemen of the antagonists. No profanity. No beefs. No tantrums.

You could almost hear Mickey Mantle say "Excuse me" when he lashed into the Dodgers' Pee Wee Reese at second in the fourth inning of yesterday's opening game. Reese, severely bruised, didn't emit a gripe.

Brooklyn catcher Roy Campanella thought he was safe when called out stealing second in the second inning. He started to protest, then turned sharply and went back to the bench.

Gil McDougald of the Yankees, thrown out at third on a great throw by Andy Pafko, started to protest. Red-necked, he started toward the umpire, then retired meekly. Pafko himself thought there was fan interference on McDougald's third inning home run just inside the stands. Not a gripe.

"The boys have been told to watch their step and mind their business," said Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen. "No flareups."

Dressen is feeling pretty good these days, and he's not trying to hide it.

"They second-guessed me on my magazine article saying we wouldn't blow again and they second-guessed me on picking Joe Black to open. I guess this will fix 'em for a while."

The Brooklyn Eagle's late afternoon edition carried the bold front page headline: "EXPERTS, DROP DEAF!". Then below: "Dodgers in Series Opener, 4-2."

Claassen Predicts---

Kansas Over Colorado; Missouri Over Kansas State; Michigan State To Beat Oregon State; All Others

NEW YORK (AP)—Picking football winners while ducking World Series bunts and bats (last week's average—37 correct, 11 incorrect for .771. Season's average: 63 correct, 18 incorrect for .778).

Michigan State over Oregon State: It was the Spartans hardest hassle last year and they squeaked through with a 6 to 0 verdict. It should be considerable easier this time.

Wisconsin over Illinois: it is as simple as this—Wisconsin wants to go to the Rose Bowl and Illinois knows it can't. The Illini won last year and since 1932 neither has been able to win twice in a row in this bitter struggle. Ameche to star.

Maryland over Clemson: neither club is in the good graces of the suddenly, prim Southern Conference so this game has been dubbed the "Suspension Bowl." Jack Scarbath of Maryland to outshine Clemson's Buck George.

Georgia Tech over Southern Methodist: those wild Mustangs Texas aren't so wild this year.

Southern California over Army: the Trojans scored 31 points against Northwestern last week and displeased Coach Jess Hill. So woe to the poor Cadets.

Duke over Tennessee: Jack Kistler of Duke has gained 225 yards in 27 tries. That's the fourth best total in the entire nation.

Cornell over Navy: Coach Lefty James says he has discovered what caused the Big Red team's defeat by Colgate last Saturday. His team is the pick in the belief that he also found a remedy.

Texas over Notre Dame: who can remember when a good Texas team ever was roped and tied in its own backyard? But the Longhorns had better keep John Lattner under close watch.

Michigan over Stanford: the Bog Ten club seems the more solid but it will have to be solid if it expects to keep Bob Mathias in check. It is the day's TV offering.

Holy Cross over Fordham: Holy Cross gets the nod with Fordham's [illegible]in, John Hyatt, out with polio.

State over Purdue: too close for comfort.

[illegible]oma over Pittsburgh: Billy Vessels to move that ball for the scorers.

Pennsylvania over Dartmouth: [illegible]s outman their Ivy League brethern.

Marciano Going Home Today, First Time as Champion

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — World heavyweight boxing king Rocky Marciano is coming home today for the first time since he won the crown from Jersey Joe Walcott—and his home folks are planning a welcome party he'll never forget.

This city of 62,000 — known around the world as a shoe manufacturing center—is set to give its favorite son a greeting with all the trimmings.

Rocky leaves New York's La Guardia field at 8 a. m. (CST) and will land in Boston about an hour later, accompanied by his trainer Charley Goldman and former world lightweight champion Lou Ambers. Marciano watched the Brooklyn Dodgers whip the New York Yankees 4-2 in yesterday's World Series opener at Ebbets Field.

Nothing was left out of the plans for the big victory celebration. They included a giant parade, music, speeches by the mayor and other dignitaries—a real holiday spirit.

Extra police details from neighboring communities were assigned to help the Brockton police with what is expected to be a record crowd.

Shopkeepers in the downtown district arranged to close their doors during the festivities. School children got the afternoon off to cheer their sports idol.

After the day's gala events, the homecoming program will be topped off by a testimonial dinner at which the 28-year-old battler will be given a $5,000 Cadillac.

Mo. Valley Vikings Meet Central of Ia.

The Missouri Valley Vikings, last year's MCAU Champions and the "Flying Dutchmen" from Central College of Pella, Iowa, bump heads for the second time at Marshall, Friday night.

The Vikings defeated the Dutchmen last year in the closing minutes of the game by a score of 7 to 0. Both teams are seeking their first victory this year and should be evenly matched. Game time is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Tough Practice By CMSC Mules For Cape Game

The Warensburg Mules have been undergoing a week of hard workouts under Coach Harry Fritz who has been "pouring it on" since the loss to St. Benedicts last week in Kansas City. Theq have been preparing for the grind at Cape Girardeau Friday night.

Emphasis have been on aerial offense and defense while considerable time was devoted to blocking and tackling practice.

Herb Ford, former Smith-Cotton grid star who is in his Freshman year at Central Missouri State College, may turn out to be one of the best ends the Mules have had in several years. Ford is holding down both defense and offensive positions. Another Mule find ih Bob Strack, who hails from Iola, Kan., is bidding for a top spot in the back field. Strack a transfer student.

Coach Fritz is a little uphappy with the Mules over what he expressed was "too many cheap touchdowns last week with St. Benedicts". This was in spite of the more experienced St. Benedicts and a squad much heavier than the Mules.

The Mules aerial offense didn't click against St. Benedict so Quarterbacks Jim Bodenhammer and Richard Maloney were put under a week long "limbering up" on the thowing arms.

The tilt Friday night is the first Conference contest for both teams.

Mantle Asks to Take Army Physical Exam In NY, Not Oklahoma

NEW YORK —Mickey Mantle, 21-year-old New York Yankee centerfielder, has applied for permission to take his Army physical examination here Monday instead of at Miami, Okla.

Mantle requested the transfer since there is a possibility the Yanks and Brooklyn Dodgers still will be involved in the World Series on that day.

The Yankee outfielder has been rejected three times for service because of Osteomyelitis, a bone disease, in his left leg.

Rumor Tommy Holmes Will Be a Manager

Brooklyn (AP) — One rumor making the rounds at Ebbets Field is that when the World Series is over Tommy Holmes, Brooklyn reserve outfielder, will be offered a manager's job in the Dodger chain, possibly at Elmira in the Class A Eastern League.

Holmes, deposed as manager of the Boston Braves in May and signed by the Dodgers, last summer turned down a chance to manage the Braves Hartford team in the same league.

Buzzie Bavasi, Dodger vice-president, said future plans concerning all Dodger players will have to wait until the end of the series. Meanwhile, Holmes is hoping to play is the series.

Grid Double Header

DALLAS (AP) — A college football double header in Dallas two years ago set all kinds of records. This was when Texas and Oklahoma played in the afternoon and Oklahoma A & M battled Southern Methodist at night. More than 150,000 paid admission were recorded for the two games played in the Cotton Bowl.

Under-rated Buffalo May Trouble KU

By SKIPPER PATRICK

LAWRENCE, Kas. (AP) — Zack Jordan, an under rated football player the past two seasons, is expected to play a major role in the Colorado Buffaloes' all-important Big Seven clash with Kansas here Saturday.

Jordan, a 185-pound senior tailback from Denver, indicated this may be his best season by scoring three touchdowns as Colorado battled Oklahoma to a 21-21 tie at Boulder, Colo., last week. His punting kept Oklahoma backed up all day and his passing set up all three Colorado touchdowns.

Workhorse in coach Dal Ward's single wing attack, Jordan set a national collegiate punting record as a sophomore two seasons ago, averaging 48.2 yards on 38 kicks. A foot injury slowed him down last year, but he still managed a 38.8 kicking average.

Jordan completed 62 of 123 passes last year for 897 yards.

The Buffalo star will find a most capable triple treat opponet in Kansas' Gil Reich, ex - West Point star, who engineered the Jayhawks to victory over both T. C. U. and Santa Clara. Reich operates at quarterback in coach Jules Sikes' regular T formation.

Reich's passing accounted for both touchdowns in the T. C. U. game. He made the winning touchdown on a 70-yard punt return against Santa Clara.

The 2 p. m. (cst) kickoff is expected to draw 30,000. And Colorado will have a real cheering section for sure. Earl Falkenstein, Kansas business manager, said he had mailed a block of 1,300 tickets to Boulder to be used by the Colorado student body.

Colorado finished second in the Big Seven last year, losing only to Oklahoma. The Buffaloes trimmed highly favored Kansas, 35-27, at Boulder.

Colorado, which opened with a 20-14 victory over San Jose State, and Kansas are both undefeated. The tie with Oklahoma cost Colorado a half game on the loss side in the conference standings, just as it did the defending champion Sooners.

Rivaling the Colorado - Kansas game in Big Seven interest will be the meetings of Missouri and Kansas State at Manhattan, Kas., ahd Nebraska and Iowa State at Lincoln, Neb.

Oklahoma will meet Pittsburgh in an intersectional struggle at Norman, Okla.

All of the teams completed heavy work yesterday. Only Oklahoma failed to complain of some injuries.

Big And Little Gridders

UNIVERSITY, Miss (AP) — Left guard Knox Gary, Memphis, is the lightest lineman on the University of Mississippi football squad. He weighs only 177 pounds. Gary plays alongside the squad's largest performer, 240-pound Charles (Moe) Morganti, the left tackle. Both are junior lettermen and play on offense.

Black Has Come Long Way In Year To Present Height

BROOKLYN (AP)—Two years ago today Joe Black was traveling by bus and pitching for the Baltimore Elite Giants in the Negro National League.

A year ago today he was getting ready to pitch the Oct. 4 opening game for Manager Billy Herman's Cienfuegos team in the Havana Winter League.

Today Black stands on the threshhold of World Series greatness.

The 28-year-old rookie, who can 15 games and saved 14 others with his relief pitching for the Brooklyn Dodgers, beat the Yankees' ace, Allie Reynolds, 4-2, yesterday.

"He'll see a lot of this series," Manager Charley Dressen said.

Black, when asked why he had shaken off several of catcher Roy Campanella's signs, replied:

"We both shake our heads once in a while but I never shake him off. He knows the hitters better than I do. I just throw to him."

The Dodgers got Black on a "look basis" from the Baltimore Elites in December, 1950. They paid $11,000 for him and two other players.

Dressen lashed back at critics who said he was gambling by starting his brilliant fireman against Reynolds, who has won a World Series game for the Yankees in each of their last four classics.

"I guess that will hold them," said Dressen. "Black was my soundest pitcher and deserved the pitcher. Casey Stengel says that chance. Reynolds was their best by the way he talks."

Washington School Beats Mark Twain By a 26-13 Score

Washington School is on its way to another Grade School Conference title having defeated Mark Twain, Wednesday evening 19:13 and taking Horace Mann, last week 25-13.

Playing at Liberty Park Mark Twain jumped into an early lead scoring a touchdown, Dick Craig carrying the ball over for the first six points.

Marshall Bryan taking the ball on the kickoff went 75 yards for a touchdown and converted for the extra point on a running play.

In the second quarter Dick Sklar carried the ball over for Mark Twain's second touchdown and Dale Miller converted for the extra point on a running play. The score gave Mark Twain a 13-7 lead.

In the second quarter Bryan again scored on a ten yard run around end, and failed on the conversion.

The half ended in a 13-13 tie.

Bobby Stratton on a 40-yard run carried the ball over the goal line in the third quarter for Washington and they failed for the extra point.

From then on neither team was able to score.

Dodgers Could Win Series; Make Experts All Look Bad

BROOKLYN (AP)—Know what?—the Dodgers could win this World Series and make a lot of experts look very bad.

It was a smart, loose team which outslugged the Yankees, 4-2, in yesterday's opener, extremely skilled on defense and a picture of confidence in its every move.

Joe Black, the big Negro rookie proved himself a very fine pitcher as he throttled the American Leaguers in the tight spots, and he is due to be back for several more helpings before it is over.

This was the first opener the Dodgers ever have won in six World Series.

Dressen's all-or-nothing gamble of starting his freshman reliever didn't really look like a gamble at all as Black mowed the Yanks down inning after inning. The big fellow appeared to get faster as he went along. No harder ball was thrown all day than the strike which Irv Noren looked at to end the ball game.

As they went into the second game today behind Carl Erskine, their small-size righthander, the National Leaguers had every reason to feel their oats. Having disposed of Allie Reynolds with three well-hit home runs, they had no particular reason for fearing Vic Raschi, the Yankees' second best.

Black probably will be given a days' rest, but he will be back ready for relief duty in tomorrow's third game at Yankee Stadium.

Black's pitching was, of course, the standout performance of the opener, but not by too much.

Andy Pafko, the Dodger leftfielder, turned in two tremendous plays to choke off a Yankee threat in the fifth inning. First he made a remarkable peg to third to cut down Gil McDougald after Billy Martin had singled. Then, pausing only to catch his breath, he came in a mile to make a somersaulting catch of a drooper by Hank Bauer.

Billy Cox, widely acknowledged to be the finest fielding third-baseman in the game today, made a brilliant stop and throw in the seventh on McDougald's slashing grounder to start a double play which stopped the Stengeleers in their tracks. To complete the inning, he backhanded Martin's hopper over third and threw him out.

In other words, the Dodgers did everything they were supposed to do. They hit the long ball, they fielded spectacularly, and they had a man named Black.

The day's hardest hit ball probably was the homer slugged by Peewee Reese in the eighth, which only ensured the victory after Duke Snider's towering two-run smash over the clock in rightfield had sent the Dodgers into the lead at 3-1.

Yogi Berra did not acquit himself with any honors to speak of. The Yankee catcher got the ball out of the infield only once in four tries, and twice he forced teammates at second when a hit might have broken the game wide open.

His opposite number, Roy Campanella, didn't do too well, either.

Although Mickey Mantle struck out in his final time at bat when the Yanks were desperate for a hit, the "pheenom" from Oklahoma gave warning that he must be dealt with by collecting two of his team's six hits, one of them on a bunt. The fleet kid also raced to make a catch on Reese in the fourth inning which would have done full credit to Joe DiMaggio.

Record Flamingo Crop

MIAMI (AP) — A new and different kind of record was set last season at Hialeah. The Census Takers revealed that 76 flamingoes were born at the special Hialeah flamingo farm. The previous high was 74 in 1944. Summer - like weather last winter is given as the reason.

Truman Plays 'I Like Ike, But--' Melody

ABOARD TRUMAN TRAIN (AP)—President Truman played his own version of "I like Ike" along the West Coast today in a homely, almost earthy rhythm that constant repetition made a campaign chant.

The lyrics were a bit different from those of the Eisenhower enthusiasts, the parody being built not so much on "I like Ike" as on "I like Ike, but—."

Encouraged by the laughter of the whistle-stop crowds in North Dakota, Montana and Idaho, he pursued his course in Washington, where he tried out his anti-Eisenhower technique in a major talk at Spokane last night.

There, he told a crowd in the National Guard Amory he was "sorry to see the abject surrender" of the Republican presidential nominee "to the reactionary, vindictive wing of the Old Guard."

Part of his Spokane speech was delayed by yells, whistles and cries of "give 'em hell, Harry" and "pour it on." Police Chief Clyde Phelps estimated his audience there at 4,000 in the armory and said there were 1,500 others who couldn't get in.

The President brought a roar of laughter when he departed from his prepared text to give his comment on statements by Eisenhower and other Republicans that taxes can be reduced by slashing government expenditures for national defense purposes.

"It's just a damn lie," he declared.

Of the suggestion made by some of a fixed limit on spending for defense he said, with acid in his voice:

"That's the craziest thing I ever heard of."

The police chief said there were 10,000 persons who applauded and waved as Truman drove the eight blocks from his special train to the armory.

Truman told reporters he was having the time of his life on this campaign, and he looked it as he strode through the 16-car special late yesterday, chatting amiably with reporters.

His efforts to cut down on Eisenhower prestige as a candidate for president increased at every appearance before a trainside crowd.

The route today led through Ephrata, Wenatchee, Skykomish and Everett, Wash., into Seattle for a talk there at 9 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

Another important address was set for Tacoma at 11:30 p.m., EST, after a whistle-stop speech at Kent, between Tacoma and Seattle.

While he put out a prepared address on the Spokane speech, he got in his toughest and roughest campaign licks at the whistle stops.

Such as at Troy, Mont., where he got around to calling the GOP the "generals' own party."

"The Republicans have General Motors, and General Electric, and General Foods, and Gen. MacArthur and Gen. Martin (Sen. Martin of Pennsylvania) and Gen. Wedemeyer," he said.

"And then they have their own five-star general who is running for president, and I understand he will carry some other generals around with him to give him a hand in the political campaign.

"That's a lot of generals, I want to say to you that every general I know is on this list—every General I have mentioned in this list is in the general's column. Except general welfare, and general welfare is in with the corporals and the privates in the Democratic party."

He said if all the privates vote for Adlai Stevenson, "you know what the results will be."

Truman said that while he personally is "just a buck private in the rear ranks in this campaign," he does happen to be president and "therefore I am leader of the Democratic Party."

"But," he said, with a twinkle in his eye, "I am ready to act as a private any time Adlai Stevenson asks me to act one."

And over and over, Truman hammered away that Eisenhower is a "great general" but unsuited for the presidency because of his lack of knowledge of "the civilian world" and of politics.

"Now I like Ike, and I like him fine—as I say—as that commanding general but I don't like him for what he stands now," he told a crowd at Whitefish, Mont. "I don't think he knows what he is doing. I think all the Republican reactionaries are whispering in his ear, and pulling his leg, and he just doesn't know what they mean.

"If you like Ike as I do, you will vote with me to send him back to the Army where he belongs. That's the best thing you can do for him—and get him out of the terrible company he is keeping, and it will help our ccuntry keep out of the mess we will be in if he is elected."

Mother-In-Law Brings Woe

MILWAUKEE (AP) — When his mother-in-law moved in for an extended visit, everything just seemed to go wrong.

Hubby had to sleep on the couch. He lost the affections of his wife. He couldn't eat. He started staying out late at night. He ended up in the divorce courts.

The Understanding judge advised him to be nice to his mother-in-law so that she might leave voluntarily. It worked. The couple, who together lost 22 pounds during the interim, are back together again and, according to the judge, very much in love.

Mule Train—Missouri to Spain

MULES ON THE RUN stir up Missouri dust as they're driven from the Owen-Good ranch to waiting boxcars for shipment to Spain. It's the last exercise they get until they reach Madrid.

WARY-EYED MULE is inspected by trader Ferd Owen (right) and Tim Marcellan, Spanish buyer's agent, before being shipped.

By MARY C. FLYNN
NEA Staff Correspondent

BELTON, Mo. — A mule train nearly a mile long, bound for Spain, bears out a loyal trader's conviction that the "mule is here to stay" despite modern machinery.

True to its reputation for stubbornness, the "vanishing" mule apparently refuses to be driven to extinction. Although rapidly disappearing from the American landscape, popularity on the foreign market persists.

Just as stubborn when it comes to championing the mule is Ferd Owen, known as the "Mule King of the World." He's determined to keep that faith — even if it means being a "good sport," as he puts it, by losing $100,000 in one season waiting out sale of the animals.

Currently, 415 three- and four-year-old mules from the 2063-acre Owen - Good ranch near Belton are on the high seas en route to Madrid.

1

When the Spanish ship unloads the mules in Spain, it will return to America for 400 additional mules. More than 800 mules were delivered to the Spanish buyer in previous consignments in recent months.

While at sea, the mules will consume about 100 tons of hay, which is being put aboard with them. According to Owen, the shipping expense is about $250 per mule — more than the cost of one of the animals.

Nearly 100 mules from the ranch are on the way to Israel.

TRAIN-BOUND mule train is driven up ramp into cattle cars for rail trip to seaport.

All the mules will be used for farm work in the foreign countries. They are preferred because they can do work in terrain where machinery can't and for people to whom machinery either is unavailable or a financial impossibility.

Owen recently sent a large number of small mules to Greece. The purchaser requested "pint-sized" but fully grown mules because they require less feed. Farmers who will receive the animals barely can raise enough food for themselves.

Office work connected with the vast enterprises of Owen and his young partners, Wendell and Leon Keen, whom he raised from childhood, is managed by Owen's wife Bertie, and daughter, Mrs. Lela Owen Good. The women and their office assistants have turned their interests principally to a new livestock sales venture inaugurated at the ranch last year.

As for Owen, his first love still is mules.

"I guess I'll always be just a mule trader at heart," he said as he adjusted his western hat and ground the tip of his stockman's cane in the dirt.

Then he added: "The women folks are good mule dealers, too, but I suppose their interest in the mule has diminished with the mule's popularity — yep, the women are mighty business-like on that score."

Owen, who has been "dealing with mules" since he was 12 years old, when he worked for a "mule man" for $10 a month, intends to coach his eight - year - old grandson, Owen Good, in the art of mule trading. He described his other two grandsons, Ferdie, 14, and Gibby, 10, as "cattle men".

The "apple" of the mule trader's eye is his six-year-old granddaughter, Bertie Lela, for whom he recently purchased three pet dwarf calves. The children, with their mother, live on the ranch.

Bertie Lela, like her brothers, undoubtedly will be schooled in her doting grandfather's pride — the mule.

"They say the mule is gone, but we will see the day when a lot of people will wish they had a good pair of mules," he predicted.

Stewart Avenue Market Marks Opening of Enlarged Building

It was back in 1934, right in the midst of the degression, that two young men started in business—the grocery business at the Stewart Avenue Market, 1010 South Stewart.

The boys were neighbors, Ernest Goldsmith, who lived on East Fifth, and Bob Kahrs, who lived on East Sixth, and they had played together in the neighborhood "gang" of kids. Bob's mother had owned a grocery store and he knew a little about it, but Ernie knew nothing about the business.

So, the two boys bought the grocery store on Stewart and started.

"Today we would have been scared—we wouldn't have attempted it—the depression and all—"said Ernie—but they were very young then and youth is unafraid.

The store was 20 by 40, and Ernie had a wife and a sister, both named Mildred, and both gave a little hand in the store. Later Bob married the sister and it became a family affair. Then it became a little more of a family affair when Bob Goldsmith, a cousin of Ernie's started work in the store after school and on Saturdays, at the advanced age of nine, and continued to work there until the boys sold out in 1943. The two Bobs went in service and Ernest went to Kansas City to work.

In April, 1946, the two Bobs, both home again from service, bought back the store. In January 1947 Ernie joined them and in 1948 they remodeled and doubled the space of the store.

Now—they have doubled again—and their newly remodeled and redecorated Stewart Avenue Market is four times its original size. This time they built on the rear of the store and have painted and redecorated the interior in yellow and balsam green.

They have new refrigeration, vegetable rack, dairy case and frozen foods, walk-in cooler, meat case, refrigerating machinery, all the latest in everything in Tyler equipment. The store has a serve-yourself system with the exception of the meat department and the boys also have a large delivery service.

There are two meat cutters. One, Ralph Strader, who was with them in 1936 until they sold out. He, too, went in service and in December 1946 again returned to the store to work. The other cutter is Harley Stanford, who has been there since March of this year.

The other employees of the store are John Webb, who has been there three years, and J. D. Webb, wha has been there four years, but is leaving next week for the Army. The Webb boys are brothers.

So that is the personnel of the the two Mildreds taking turns working and Frances Goldsmih, who is Bob Goldsmith's wife, helping at the time she is needed most. They are all on hand this week for the grand opening of the little store that has grown into a big store that is modern in every way.

Hughesville Soldier Graduates In Korea

The school is operated to insure adequately trained replacements for 2nd division personnel leaving the unit on rotation.

While in the school, the men are taught warfare techniques by combat veterans.

Before entering the army in November, 1951, Smith was engaged in farming.

Aunt Jemima Will Be Visitor At Kroger Store on Saturday

Aunt Jemima will be in Sedalia Saturday, Oct 4, and will be the chief center of attraction at the Kroger store.

This is a demonstration staged at the Kroger's by The Quaker Oats Company through their representative in this territory, Kenneth Weinrich. The cooked pancakes will be absolutely free to those who visit this store Saturday.

Aunt Jemima is to be here in person. However, there is a legendary story connected with Aunt Jemima of long ago. It is as follows:

Aunt Jemima was a mammy cook, famous in the Old South in those golden days "befo' de Wah". They tell us her master was Colonel Higbee, owner of a plantation at Higbee's Landing, Louisiana, on the Mississippi River.

Colonel Higbee's hospitality was famous in that universally hospitable area. Famous because of his qualities as a host, and famous because of Aunt Jemima's cooking. Guests carried away memories that made their mouths water, and told tales of the Higbee table that made the listener dream of an invitation.

Legend has it that Aunt Jemima was a genius. In a land of excellent cooks she was supreme. She was a woman of great native intelligence, who to a born gift of cooking had added many years of labor and experience.

And the achievement that she valued most was the secret recipe for her most famous of delicious dishes—Aunt Jemima Pancakes.

They say when she baked pancakes—for breakfast, lunch, or supper — that Colonel Higbee would call Aunt Jemima into the dining room and praise her before his guests. And the happy smile his words brought to her face was widened by the enthusiastic compliments of the guests.

That's the kind of cooking Aunt Jemima will bring to Sedalia Sunday.

Dizzy Ride on Roller Coaster Now Possible In Movie Seat

By EDWARD CURTIS

NEW YORK (AP)—You can now take a dizzy ride on a roller coaster—sitting in a movie seat. You'll gasp, get clammy hands. It's real.

It's Cinerama. This is a new movie system of projecting pictures which gives an illusion of the third dimension—depth.

After its premiere last night at the Broadway Theater, old movieman Louis B. Mayer exclaimed: "I think it means new life for pictures. It'll do for the industry what sound did for silent pictures."

The first showing of the new film is pitched on its technique rather than a dramatic story. The backers of the new process wanted to show what it could do. The result is a series of beautiful and at times startling sketches in color of Europe and American scenes.

The film is projected on a curved screen. It's like looking into the bottom of a "U". The screen is about six times the size of the one in your neighborhood theater.

The image on the screen is not one picture. It's really three. In making the movie, the photographer uses a camera with three lenses. One looks straight ahead, a second to the left and a third to the right.

The projection is the same way. You see three pictures joined together as one on the big screen. Because of the curve in the screen, you get the illusion of depth.

ith the new projection system Cinerama also has come up with new sound. There are five loudspeakers spaced around the curved screen and other loudspeakers are at the sides and in back of the theater.

The most exciting sequence in the film, "This Is Cinerama," was the opening one. This took the audience on a roller coaster ride with all the realism of being in the front coaster seat.

Careful 'Doc' About Praising 'Wonder Drugs'

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors should be wary of appraising the powers of the wonder-drugs in the way grandma measured the success of onion poultices, a Washington physician says.

Declaring that medical practitioners are all too prone to credit a wonder-drug like penicillin with the cure when a patient treated with such a drug for a poorly defined ailment—especially of the nose and throat—gets well, Dr. John A. Washington told the annual Scientific Assembly of the District of Columbia Medical Society late yesterday:

"Like grandmothers with onion poultices we credit our success to the medicine in use at the time the temperature drops."

The George Washington University pediatrician said that while the antibiotic wonder-drugs are valuable foes of certain specific infections, there are others against which the drugs have no power at all—and that some of these ailments are subject to spontaneous recovery.

He made the remarks in cautioning doctors against "unnecessary" use of the antibiotics lest they: (1) Needlessly expose a patient to the risk of some kind of a reaction from the drug (2) subject a family to unnecessary expense for the drugs; (3) cause mothers to waken needlessly at all hours of the night to give the drug to a sick child; and (4) build up fears in a child of a "needle-wielding doctor."

Chiang Aids Education

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has ordered the Defense Ministry to arrange for a free education of children whose fathers died in the Nationalist cause.

The order applies not only to dependents of fighting men but to those of civilians classed as revolutionary martyrs.

Bob Thomas In Hollywood---

Oscar Hammerstein II Turns Actor for 2nd Time In Life

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For the second time in his notable career, Oscar Hammerstein II is turning actor. But it's merely to further his lengthy romance with the theater.

America's most successful writer of lyrics and musical plays will portray himself in a film called "Main Street to Broadway." It will be a co-operative affair featuring most of the Broadway stars and benefiting the Council for the Living Theater. The latter is aimed at pumping life back into the legit theater, now undergoing one of its periodic illnesses.

Hammerstein was here to visit his grandchildren and the touring company of "South Pacific." I asked him about his two widely separated acting chores.

"The first was when I was a young man," he related. "I was stage manager for one of my uncle's plays, and the script called for the stage manager to come onstage and say a few lines. So I played myself. But the play only lasted three weeks. I don't know if my performance had anything to do with that, but it certainly didn't help.

"Funny thing, I always wanted to be an actor. I did a lot of it in college, where I could write my own material and direct and produce myself in it. But afterwards nobody would give me a chance to act. I guess my family, being so close to the theater, didn't want me to become an actor."

The man who wrote the words for such shows as "Show Boat" and "Oklahoma!" will again be playing himself in "Main Street to Broadway." He will do a theater lobby scene with his partner, Richard Rodgers, and their wives.

"The script calls for me to ask someone for a match," Hammerstein mentioned. "Which is very interesting because neither Dick nor I smokes."

Speaking about his favorite topic, the theater, Hammerstein admitted that the last season on Broadway was a bad one. "But I suspect there have been worse ones," he said. "Back in the '20s there were some good plays. But there were lots of others running that were pretty bad.

"That's the trouble with the stage today; there is no margin for error. A show has to be a tremendous hit or it can't last. You used to be able to salvage some money out of a show that wasn't a smash. But now a show that isn't acclaimed can close in three nights.

"Rising costs are another great problem. My uncle used to put on plays for $7,000. Nowadays the minimum for a straight play is around $70,000.

"The problem is also a creative one. There doesn't seem to be much design to the era we are living in. No wonder it is difficult for playwrights to find something to write about."

But he has no doubt that the theater will survive, as it always has. "Since the beginning of time," he observed, "there have always been people who wanted to show off, and there have always been people who wanted to listen and watch."

Jeferson PTA Buying School Movie Projector

The first meeting of the Jefferson School PTA was held Friday, Sept. 26, at 7:30 p. m. with the new president, Mrs. V. A. Siegel, presiding.

Mrs. Siegel presented the new principal of the school, George Thompson, who introduced the two new teachers, Mrs. Cecil Peoples, teacher of the seventh grade, and Elbert Grimit, teacher of the fifth grade.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Charles Poynter.

The organization voted to buy a movie projector for the school.

Mrs. Siegel will be the delegate from Jefferson PTA to the state convention which will be held in Kansas City.

Room count was won by grade two, taught by Mrs. J. H. Rabourn.

A get-acquainted tea was held following the meeting honoring the new teachers.

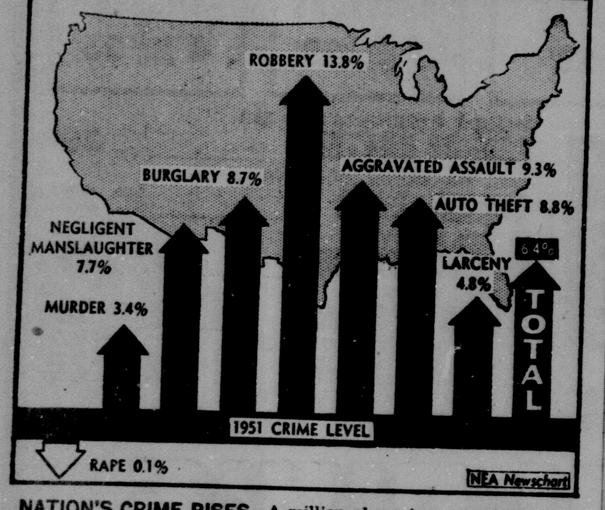
Dog Tells Time?

UPLAND, Calif. (AP)—This is a progress report on Pancho, the Postoffice mascot.

You may remember Pancho, who makes the rounds with postman Charlie Deverts. Pancho made the papers when daylight saving time started, showing up an hour late the first few days, then setting off at a brisk trot until he caught up with Charlie.

Sure enough, the dog was early the first couple of days after time returned to standard. But he just lay down to wait.

What the boys at the postoffice want to know is how Pancho knows that he's early or late.



NATION'S CRIME RISES—A million-plus crimes committed between January and June of 1952 pushed percentage increases of crimes to 6.4% more than those committed during the first six months of 1951 as seen in the above newschart. Data are from the semi-annual report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Greatest increase was in crimes such as auto stealing and robbery where something of value was stolen. Only decrease was in rape. FBI experts predict that by the end of 1952 more than two million crimes will have been recorded.

Soviet Boasts Record Grain Crop Harvest

MOSCOW (AP)—The biggest news in Russia this fall is the harvest.

"Almost everywhere," the agricultural scientist I. Yakushkin wrote in the Literary Gazette, "From the Estonia Republic to the Khabarovsk region in the Far East, collective and state farms have raised a high harvest."

Statistics on the results, even in the most general form, will not be available for some weeks or event months, but Russians in Moscow already are freely claiming that the all-time record for grain crops in the USSR will be broken.

For over four years now the Soviet grain harvest has hovered just over the magical figure of seven billion poods, as announced by responsible officials here. (A pood is 36 English pounds.)

This is the figure which up to now in the Soviet Union has indicated a good crop. It is the equivalent of roughly 115 million metric tons.

The all-time grain harvest high was scored two years ago in 1950 with a crop of 7.6 billion poods (124 million metric tons.)

In 1951 bad crop weather in certain important areas cut the grain harvest to 7.4 billion poods or 121 million metric tons. However, the wheat crop was higher than in 1950, it was claimed, and the cotton crop was better. The sugar beet crop also was slightly over the previous year.

This year, though the evidence as it has appeared in the press to date is fragmentary, there seems a possibility the USSR may far exceed its previous attainments, not only in grain but also in other vital crops.

Statements such as that which recently appeared in Red Star "Our country is reaping a good harvest this year" have been appearing with greater and greater frequency.

Articles from the harvesting areas tell of combine operators having to cope with grain yields which put last years crops far behind and which raise particular problems in harvesting because the stalks are frequently lying instead of standing.

Yakushkin in his article said:

"Notwithstanding the very dry weather in the autumn of last year, in the plains regions of the Ukraine, in the Rostov region and particularly in the Krasnodar region the majority of collective farms have grown a winter wheat harvest averaging from 25 to 27 centners per hectare."

(The signifigance of this statement is dual: The districts he mentions are among the most important of the entire country. The harvest figure he names — the equivalent of 37 to 40 bushels per acre—is indeed colossal.)

Pvt. John R. Rice Arrives In Korea

WITH THE 40TH INFANTRY DIV. IN KOREA — Pvt. John R. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Silas Rice, 316 East Morgan, Sedalia, recently arrived in Korea and has been serving with the 40th Infantry Division.

The unit landed in Korea early this year after intensive training in Japan. A California National Guard Division, it was called to active duty in 1950 and has since been filled with men from every state in the union.

Rice entered the army in February of this year and arrived in Korea on September 11.

New Mexico claims it has the oldest road in the United States, El Camino Real, established in 1581.

Newspaperboys' Day Honor For Carriers

STAMP STARS NEWSPAPERBOYS—This postage stamp honoring America's newsboys, will go on first-day sale Oct. 4 in Philadelphia, Pa. The commemorative was issued in Philadelphia to honor Benjamin Franklin, as first newsboy, and Philadelphia newsboys who were first to carry U. S. Treasury Savings Stamps on a door-to-door sales campaign during World War II.

AP Newsfeatures

Newspaperboy day, Oct. 4, is again this year an important part of Newspaper Week. The United States government has joined the list of those who will honor the boys who deliver your paper. A special three-cent stamp will be issued using the newspaperboy theme.

The newspaperboys who have long had an honored place in American life will make a further contribution to U. S. programs on that day. They will deliver defense bond leaflets with their papers.

There are some 250,000 newspaperboys in the United States. Their defense bond project grows out of the thrift club activities which have spread across the country.

The thrift clubs started in Philadelphia in 1946. During the war, the 5,419 boys who delivered the Evening Bulletin sold thrift stamps from door to door as a public service. In the process the boys themselves were their own best customers.

The United States Treasury Department and the International Circulation Managers' Association took note of their activities and sponsored the setting up of clubs in other cities.

The kind of programs in which the American newspaperboy can participate is indicated by the record of the Standard-Times' boys in New Bedford, Mass.

For five years, these boys have won the first place award in the paper's circulation class (40,000 to 75,000) in the annual International Circulation Managers' Association newspaperboys' program competition. In addition they won a plaque in 1946 from the New England Circulation Managers Association and a 1947 plaque in competition with papers in all classes in the United States and Canada.

The 1,078 Standard-Times boys have three baseball leagues. They have competition in pingpong and basketball leagues.

They have had stamp clubs, model plane clubs and glee clubs. One of the important programs is the newspaperboys' band. This group takes part in many parades and has appeared on a number of radio and TV programs. Outings and "feeds" are part of the band work. But reliability as a carrier and attendance at rehearsals are required to retain membership.

All the boys join in picnics and other outings at appropriate times during the year. A high school scholarship is awarded annually.

Programs for newspaperboys vary among the American newspapers. But for most of them, newspaperboy day is a high point in their year. In many cities community leaders pay tribute to the work which the boys are doing.

He's Not a Woman, Man Declares, Asks Birth Record Change

THREE RIVERS, Que. (AP) — A 38-year-old man says he is not a woman and his name is Joseph Romeo, no matter what his baptismal certificate says.

He asked the Superior Court here yesterday to order a change in his certificate, which attests to the birth of a girl, Marie Arthemise, Dec. 2, 1914.

The man's parents told the court Joseph's godmother was named Marie Arthemise. The priest at the baptismal apparently entered her name on the wrong line, then deduced from that the baby was female.

Nobody noticed the mistake until Joseph's employer asked for the certificate in connection with a pension fund.

Joseph also told the court he's married and is the father of six children. Judge Leon LaJoie said he would give a decision later.

It is believed that the various forms of football had their origins in a primitive game in which an inflated pig bladder was used by teams numbering as much as 200 on a side.

Commies Give Wrong Answer, Are Buried

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (AP)—Sgt. Louis J. Movic, McKeesport, Pa. Sgt Jerry L. Lawless, St. Louis, and Lt. Loyd A. Thomas Jr., Daphne, Ala., were out on patrol.

They heard a noise in a clump of weeds.

"Halt! Who's there?" Movic called.

"No," answered a voice in the blackness.

"No, who?" asked Movic.

"Chon," came the answer.

They buried Chon and four Communist comrades today.

Teddy Engle is very proud of the little loafer socks his grandmother gave him that have teddy bears on them and in red letters "Teddy" on each sock — he is certain they were made just for him.

His grandmother's name is Virginia and he thinks "Gin" is a much better name than grandmother — so — after hearing her called Gin by her family, he began calling her that, too.

"When I grow up", he told her, "I'll get you a pair of socks with Gin-a-bears on them."

The bears on his socks, he thought, were Teddy bears only because his name is Teddy. —H.L.

Noticing that it was time for her husband to be off from work a woman grabbed up what she thought was her billfold so she could have parking meter money to pay for the few minutes she would park and wait for him. She was a bit taken back when she arrived downtown, parked and reached for her billfold only to find it was not her billfold at all, but her checkbook — and even though she had money in the bank and could have written a check for anything else she might have wanted to buy — the check wasn't worth a thing when it came to the parking meter.

She was mighty glad that hubby got there before she got arrested. H. L.

Truman 'Barks' At Newspapers, One In Particular

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—President Truman cut loose again last night at one of his favorite targets—the American press—but one of the newspapers singled out particularly replied it was complimented.

The Spokesman-Review, which Truman said last night and also in 1948 was the second worst paper in the country, commented editorially:

"It is reasonable to assume that millions of Americans who hold views on the Truman administration generally similar to those of the Spokesman-Review will regard it as a compliment."

Four years ago on a whistle stop here, the President rated the Chicago Tribune and the Review in that order as the nation's poorest. Both are staunch Republican papers.

The Tribune had no comment immediately on Truman's latest barb.

The President told a capacity audience last night in the Spokane Armory the populace could never guess by reading the papers that his administration has cut the public debt and in the past year had a budget surplus of nearly four billion dollars.

Departing from his prepared text, he said this was true particularly of subscribers to the Spokesman-review which he said "never told the truth in politics in its life and wouldn't know the truth if it met it coming down the road."

Republicans at Odds Over Money for 'Spot' Programs

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON — After General Eisenhower spent two days at a New York film studio recording radio and TV "spots" for the wind-up of his campaign, the Republican high command is at odds regarding their use. More specifically, they are at odds on how to raise the money to buy the radio and TV time for their use.

The subject came up at a meeting of top GOP money - raisers in New York recently, at which Lloyd Dalzell, dynamic, young tugboat operator, offered to raise $600,000 to $800,000.

"I will raise the money, but only to be used for the General's spot announcements," he said.

However, others were skeptical; not over Dalzell's ability to raise money, but over the same issue which has caused friction inside the Republican party in the past — local leadership vs. national leadership.

Winthrop Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank and brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, was afraid that Daizell's money-raising would conflict with local money-raising. He feared he would tap the same moneyed people that local leaders will have to tap. Others agreed. Even if the national ticket should lose, they argued, Republican organizations must be kept strong locally and local tickets must be elected.

Jock Whitney, who once served in the Roosevelt administration and married Jimmie Roosevelt's ex-wife, took the opposite view. He felt nothing was more important than raising money for the spot radio and TV time.

These consist of radio recordings and TV kinescopes in which Eisenhower answers current political questions. They are to be used in the last three weeks of the campaign to "saturate" key states in the East and Midwest, which Truman carried in 1948 by only a narrow margin.

This idea was evolved by Rosser Reeves, ace advertising specialist for the Ted Bates agency. Cooperating with him was Mike Levin of the Erwin-Wasey agency. Later Fred Rudge of Fisher, Rudge and Neblett came in.

NOTE — Presiding over the finance meeting was Sidney Weinberg, head of the Giant Banking House of Goldman-Sachs. Born in Russia, brought up in Brooklyn, Weinberg is a director of more corporations than he can recite himself, got to know Gen. Lucius Clay during World War I days in Washington, later got Clay his job with Continental Can. It was through Clay that Weinberg got on the Eisenhower bandwagon.

Nixon's Press

Dynamic Dick, the GOP vice-presidential hopeful, can certainly rub newspaper editors and publishers the wrong way.

Holding a press conference with the top editors at Oklahoma City last week, Nixon declined to answer questions, gave editors the brush-off.

Commented Wheeler Mayo, publisher of the Sallisaw Times and Claremore Daily Progress:

"Never in my 20 years of owning and operating newspapers and as past president of the Oklahoma Press Association have I witnessed the snubbing that Nixon gave the press.

"Oklahoma editors were called by special invitation for the specific purpose of attending a question-and-answer conference. It was a fiasco.

Editors found that they had been called to a stacked meeting to witness and be impressed by a 15-minute glamour-boy show in which Nixon acted three parts — his own moderator, interrogator and the answerer of his own questions.

"His refusal to answer questions, in contrast with Sparkman's give-and-take of the day before, made Nixon look silly."

NOTE — The point most newsmen and the public want Nixon to explain is how he paid $20,000 down on his Washington house, while also buying a house in California, after his wife wrote in the Saturday Evening Post that they sometimes didn't have enough money to buy postage.

Ike's Press

Jim Hagerty, Press Aide to Eisenhower and one of the best in business, may be eased out. He's been the subject of considerable private debate among the General's advisers, so much so that John Foster Dulles, a good friend of both Ike and Governor Dewey, has been in touch with Dewey regarding the situation.

Hagerty is a veteran of many presidential campaigns, having been righthand man to Governor Dewey. He is popular with newsmen, but has one handicap — the General doesn't know him well, and the General doesn't feel comfortable with people he hasn't known a long time.

For one thing, Hagerty can't get in to see him on important questions which should be given the press without delay. Eisenhower's friends keep a tight wall around him, anxious to conserve his strength.

The man who would take Hagerty's place, if he leaves, is Maj. Gen. Wilton G. Persons, an old friend of Ike's who is expert at getting along with people in tight places. During part of the war he was the Army's top lobbyist on Capitol Hill, had the job of smoothing the ruffled fur of Congressmen.

Protestants Suppressed

Following the lead of Spain and Colombia, Peron's dictatorship in Argentina has now started cracking down on freedom of worship. It is doing this by revoking the preaching permits of Protestant pastors on trumped-up political charges.

Rev. Julio N. Sabanes, Uruguayan minister of the Central Methodist Church in Buenos Aires and Rev. Angel Sainz, an Argentine pastor of the United Protestant Church at the fashionable seaside resort of Mar Del Plata, were both notified by the Peron government a few days ago that they would no longer be permitted to conduct services.

Significantly, the charge sounded like the pretexts of communist regimes to eliminate independent religions.

JOHN MILLS had the door open and jumped out before the car came to a stop at the station. He slammed the door and I turned the car and raced back to the highway.

As we raced on through the storm Lucy glanced frequently at her watch, and told me the time. At 9:10 we had 20 miles to go. The road crossed railroad tracks and continued parallel to them. At last Lucy said, "Twenty-five past, Roy."

"Yes," I said, "No train yet, though."

"How much farther?"

"Eight miles, I figure."

It was a long eight miles, and as we entered the outskirts of the town Lucy told me it was 20 minutes to 10. But her voice had brightened, "Roy, the train must be late!"

I swung off a side street that looked as if it might take us to the railroad station. It did. I stopped with a squeaking of brakes, threw the door open, and we ran to the station.

"Train's late," I said. "We've got time to spare."

"I wish we'd known that on the road." She sat down beside me, blew out her breath, and stretched out her feet. Her stockings were soaked to the knees.

"Lucy, you drive a car, don't you?"

"Yes, but I don't have a driver's license with me."

"Neither do I," I said. "You'd better get going."

"Where?"

"Back to Hydetown," I said. "Drive the car back, and go straight to the depot. You might get there before the train."

"Not a chance," she said. "Not the way I'm going to drive."

"Anyhow, get going."

"Yes, sir" she said. "I'm on my way." She smiled at me, patted my shoulder, and whispered, "Roy, you're a good man in the pinches." Then she was gone.

I lighted a cigaret and went out to the platform. I was too keyed up to remain sitting in the waiting room, and I found the shelter of an ell, secure from the wind, where I smoked my cigaret and watched the storm and waited for the train. It was, in the end, nearly 40 minutes late, and it was just past 11 o'clock when I swung aboard.

• • •

AT the third drawing room I tried, a woman's voice called, "Who is it?"

"Ruth," I cried. "Is that you?"

Ruth Warburton opened the door. She was a slim, chic woman with clear gray eyes and a pleasant, rather maternal smile. "Roy Mason, what are you doing here?"

"You look terrible," I said. "Did you get caught in the storm?"

"I got a little damp, but—"

"We'll have a doctor waiting in Hydetown," I said. "Ruth, sit down. You got caught in that gale. You've got double pneumonia."

Ruth took it calmly, saying, "I suppose there's some deep significance in all this?"

I told her the story. She listened with a little pucker of her eyebrows, and when I had finished she chuckled and said, "I've done plenty for that man, but this is tops."

"He's worth it, Ruth," I said.

She gave me a look. "You bet he's worth it." She moved to the mirror. "I'd better get ready. First, off comes the make-up." She scrounged her cheeks with tissue, removed her make-up and lipstick. She turned for my inspection. "How's that?"

"Better," I said.

"I'll try a trace of eyebrow pencil," she said, and I watched faint circles form under her eyes. She turned again to me, looking haggard. "Bett...?"

"Good," I said. "Got a muffler?"

"I have a scarf."

"Wrap it around your throat. When we get off the train fetch up a hacking cough."

She practiced one. "Like that?"

"Like that," I said.

I took off my wet shoes and put my feet up against the heat register. They were dry by the time we reached Hydetown, and by then I had my shoes on again.

The train moved slowly into the station. I had a glimpse of soaked yellow shingles and steamy windows, and then close against the wall of the station I saw the clustering umbrellas and raincoats of the reception committee. Among the women was Ginny Perkins, in a transparent, hooded raincoat.

"Now is your big scene, Ruth," I said. "Lean on me."

• • •

I HELPED Ruth Warburton along the passage to the vestibule. The train stopped and the porter put down the yellow steps in the rain. The committee drew near, and Ginny Perkins stepped forward and said in a clear, rehearsed voice, "Welcome home to Hydetown, Mrs. Warburton."

I went down the steps ahead of Ruth, and Ginny's eyes opened wide. "Why, Roy Mason," she said. "You jack-in-the-box!"

"Get an ambulance," I said.

"An ambulance?"

"Mrs. Warburton has a fever of 104," I said. "It looks like pneumonia. She was caught in the big storm last night." I stood on the bottom step and raised my voice. "Ladies, Mrs. Warburton is extremely ill. I'm afraid we must dispense with the ceremonies."

I held out my hands to Ruth and she chose that moment for a cough that echoed in the rain. It was an achievement.

A plump, graying woman wearing a slicker and a transparent covering over a feathered hat moved forward and called, "Ruth, you must remember me. I'm Agnes Mills. My husband is here and we'll rush you straight to our house."

We had Ruth between us, and we went quickly across to the cindered ground where cars were nosed up to a white iron railing. John Mills had picked up Ruth's two suitcases, and as he overtook us I said loudly, "I've already notified the Governor, Mr. Mills. I sent a wire."

GOP Charge VA Squanders GI Bill Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Veterans Administration, which plans to lay off 2,250 hospital employes in an economy move, was accused by a Republican campaign leader today of squandering its GI education funds.

The V. A. announced yesterday that, by Nov. 4, it will discharge 2,250 workers in the administrative, special services, custodial and maintenance ranks at its 92 hospitals and two domiciliary facilities.

The announcement said the personnel reduction is "a step designed to help bring the agency within funds appropriated." The VA's budget request for medical activities during the year which started July 1 was reduced by congress from $701,442,318 to $670,318,634.

Frank C. Hilton, Veterans Division chairman of the Republican National Committee, contended in a statement today:

"Unless there is a change in the national administration, veterans affairs handled by the Veterans Administration will continue to grow worse."

Hilton said both Democrats and Republicans are uncovering instances in which the V. A. is "snarling veterans' benefits and wasting uncounted millions of dollars."

With educational benefits now extended to Korea veterans, Hilton said, "there are further opportunities to repeat the known over-payment of approximately 100 million dollars for training."

From 1944 to 1950, Hilton said, 34 per cent of cases investigated showed "Maladministration, negligence, gift-acceptance, or outright criminal activity by VA personnel."

"The Veterans Administration allowed the waste of tens of millions of dollars for supplies," he said. "Additional tens of millions were wasted on worthless training courses."

Hilton said Korea veterans would be assured of "the square deal to which they are entitled" if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the GOP candidate for president, is elected.

Yesterday's V. A. announcement said none of those being discharged would be doctors, nurses, dentists or dietitians—although some of these may be transferred from one hospital to another. The VA said the cuts would have been greater except that it froze employment Aug. 5 and has hired no replacements since then.

The V. A. said its 1952-53 average daily patient load would have to be reduced from a planned 102,000 to 99,200. On Aug. 31 there were 97,836 patients reported in V. A. hospitals.

Fireworks Too Late

BALTIMORE (AP)—It was nearly three months late for fireworks, and besides, motorists don't usually go around shooting Roman candle balls of fire into the night air.

So police arrested Peter Mworczynski and charged him with driving without registration, driving under a revoked license, with fictitious tags and reckless driving.

The World Today---

One of a Kind Campaign

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)— Certainly there never has been a presidential campaign like this.

It's enough to make a person dizzy simply trying to keep up with where the candidates are.

From coast to coast, from North to South, the candidates have beeen seen in person. Voters not in direct line of this steady oratorical fire have had ample chances to hear them on radio and television.

Day after day what the candidates have had to say—or, just as important, what they haven't had to say—has been reported at length in newspapers.

In view of the unrelenting campaign to convince the voters, it's interesting to recall that this active pursuit of the presidency is a recent thing.

The early view was summarized by William Lowndes of South Carolina. When his state nominated him in 1821, Lowndes said:

"The presidency is not an office to be either solicited or declined."

Not until 1836 was the spell broken. In that year William Henry Harrison made what appears to have been the first modern campaign. He visited New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virvinia, Kentucky and Illinois, politicking as he went.

Candidates who followed Harrison didn't always follow his pattern. Lincoln, for instance, didn't campaign either in 1860 or 1864. And as recently as 1924 Calvin Coolidge made but one political speech.

Administration leaders now get in whatever political licks they can.

But the late George Stimpson pointed out in "A Book About Political Parties"—that's the source of most of these early campaign facts—that John Adams had quite a different view in 1840. Adams wrote in his diary:

"One of the most remarkable peculiarities of the present time is that the principal leaders of the political parties are travelling about the country from state to state, and holding forth, like Methodist preachers, hour after hour, to assembled multitudes, under the broad canopy of heaven.

"Webster and Clay, W. C. Rives, Silas Wright, and James Buchanan are among the first and foremost in this canvassing oratory, while Andrew Jackson and Martin Van Buren, with his heads of departments, are harping upon another string of the political accordion by writing controversial electioneering letters."

It's a good thing the Eisenhower and Stevenson campaign chariots are headed in the same direction or there might be a head-on collision. If Ike is going to veer in away from the Republican Old Guard and Stevenson does the same from the Democrat Left-Wingers, the middle is going to get mighty crowded.

Fall Festival Grand Success At Stover

By Mrs. Arthur Ward

STOVER — The Stover Fall Festival sponsored annually by the Lion's Club, proved very successful in every way. The fine weather, entertainment and exhibits attracted large crowds. The Stover band, under its efficient director, Mrs. Joe Kimbrell, played each afternoon and evening, followed by the Stover baton twirling class under the direction of Misses Lena Mae Duffer and Helen Marriott. Free exhibitions were given by the Evans Carnival Company. The novelty cycling act and comedy table act followed and the grand parade on Thursday and Friday evenings, led by the American Legion with flags being carried for the 13 deceased members, was followed by the Stover band and baton twirlers.

Then the lovely floats, including the six queen candidates, was followed by the Saddle and Sirloin Club of Versailles.

Friday night the queen was chosen and crowned. Miss Phyllis Parker and the St. Paul's Church float received the winning prize of $50. A dance at the beautiful new Legion Home Saturday night closed a very enjoyable occasion.

The Lion's Cake Walk each evening at 9:30 attracted many contestants. The usual clown and popular whiskered band was missing. An estimated crowd of 1,500 to 1,800 was present each night.

The visiting of old friends and relatives were among the high lights. A few that came to the writer's attention were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Todd of St. Louis, Elry Welpman and granddaughter of Joplin, Mrs. Gordia Rapp, Mrs. Cora Small, Mrs. Chas. Brady, Mary and Charles of Sedalia; Mr. and Mrs. William Harms and Patsy of Chilhowee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henry of Windsor, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Parker and family from Concordia and many from Cole Camp and Versailles.

Mrs. Wilma Clark and son, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of Sedalia were Sunday dinner guests last Sunday of Mesdames Lillie Williams and Inez Rapp. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. John Miller visited with Don Johnson in the sign language.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Silvey attended the funeral of his sister Mrs. Nita Riggs at Ritchie Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Riggs, aged 87, died at the home of her son Aussie Riggs in Versailles after a long illness. She leaves two sons with their families to mourn her passing. The funeral was under the direction of the Scrivner Funeral Home.

E. G. Blackman was honored on his 84th birthday Sunday with a contributed dinner by seven of his eight children. Those present were Ralph Blackman of Waterloo, Ia.; Mrs. Gertrude Wafford and Mrs. Bertha Wiest of Odessa; Mrs. Bessie Wall and husband of Hardin, Mrs. Jessie Parker and family of Concordia, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Case and Mary, Merle of Chillicothe, Ruth of Kansas City and Don students at CMSC, Warrensburg; Earl Blackman and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Case and daughters of Stover and Miss Hattie Nottman.

W. A. Warnke, local banker, tripped over the wagon tongue of the Lions float he was working on and broke his knee cap. He will be confined to his bed several weeks.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Sterling Ward stayed all night Tuesday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Ward enroute from Lorenzo, Tex., where Mrs. Ward has been staying with her parents, to Hannibal, Mo., where Dr. Ward has been assigned to the pastorate of the First Methodist Church in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ward received an announcement this week of a new great grandson, Davis Michael, born to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bohling of Jessica, Iowa. Stanley is with the Marines and stationed in North Carolina.

Reports from Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Small from Mayo Brothers clinic, Rochester, Minn., are that Mr. Small's operation was very successful and they expect to be home in three weeks. Dean Hamrick is assisting Mr. Combs in the Small service station during his absence.

Oscar Smith was surprised Sunday when around 30 relatives came with well filled baskets in honor of his birthday. The following guests were present, Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Rumans and family, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith and family of Kansas City, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lawson and family of Cole Camp; Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Ray and family of Sedalia; Mr. and Mrs. Kerknick and family of Cole Camp, Mrs. Maggie Hume of Cole Camp, Mrs. Rosie Smith and Messrs. Sterling Lawson and George Burns.

A number of members of the Women's Missionary Federation of Christ Lutheran Church attended an all day fall rally Tuesday in St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Cole Camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Fischer and Mrs. Richie Kuhlman, Sweet Springs and Jewel Oetting of Concordia were visitors here during the Festival and others from Kansas City were Mr. and Mrs. Gus Kraxberger, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Rapp, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Huffman, William Bowers and F. William Koehler.

Prof. Jack Delph, wife and daughter of Sedalia, a former instructor here was judge of grade schools in the parade Saturday morning, an interesting feature of the day's program.

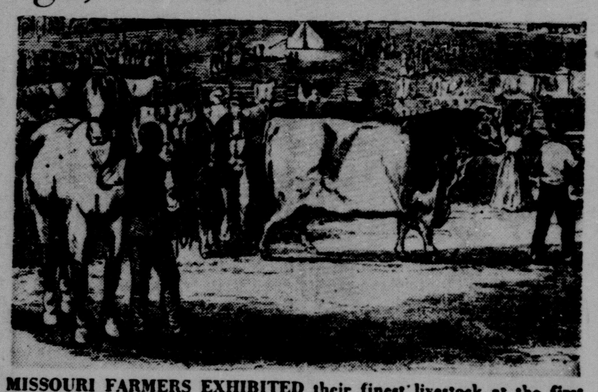
Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan Jolley and family of Kansas City spent the week end with relatives here.

The Rev. J. M. James of California, Mo., will be the evangelist at the First Baptist Church during the simultaneous evangelistic crusade Oct. 5 through 19. Ernest Hughes, music director of the church, will lead the singing. Dr. Roy F. Williams is pastor.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy F. Williams attended the Lamine Baptist Associational Music Rally at the First Baptist Church in Versailles Sunday afternoon. The Rev. Wayne Masters of Syracuse, formerly of Stover was in charge.

Missouri History---

First State Fair 100 Years Ago, Was Held at Boonville



MISSOURI FARMERS EXHIBITED their finest livestock at the first state agricultural fair in 1853.

Missourians brought the very best products of their farms and households to exhibit at the first state fair, which opened at Boonville October 3, 1853.

The fair was sponsored by the Missouri State Agricultural Society, created by the General Assembly in February, 1953 for the purpose of advancing agriculture and holding exhibits and fairs. The state was to appropriate $1,000 each year for premiums.

People in all sorts of vehicles and on horseback thronged the roads on their way to the fairgrounds on opening day. Women wearing their gayest bonnets and most brilliant attire brought preserved fruits, vegetables, dairy products and flowers to exhibit. Their husbands brought their finest livestock and poultry and giant pumpkins and cabbages which they had carefully nurtured for the occasion.

During the four days of the fair Missourians also saw displays of agricultural implements and home manufactured woolen and linen cloth. They inspected their neighbors' exhibits of guineas, peacocks, and muscovy ducks and saw champion mules, cattle, and horses. They noted the winners of premiums on bread, hams, corn and tobacco, and possibly wondered at one of the mechanical exhibits—"a rotary fan bedstead, which, upon being wound up before retiring, fans one to sleep, keeping off mosquitoes and flies."

Principle displays came from the central and Missouri River counties. Boone County led in the total number of premiums won. Cooper County topped all others in hog prizes. Howard and Audrain in mules. Callaway on draft and saddle stallions, and Boone County on tobacco.

The fair lasted four days, and estimates placed the attendance on the final two days at 4,000. Several sections of hastily erected grandstands collapsed on the closing day, but no one was injured.

This first Missouri state fair was not a financial success: the cost of the grounds and improvements totaled about $6,000, while receipts were only around $3,000. But it was thought that the debt could be paid off and the next's year's fair could offer larger premiums.

The state fair as we know it today came into existence in 1901. A law providing for a state fair was passed in 1899, and Sedalia was selected by the State Board of Agriculture as the annual site. By the State Historical Society of Missouri at Columbia, Floyd C. Shoemaker, secretary.

Marian Davies Tosses Party For Ray, Whom She Never Saw

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marion Davies, once movieland's most fabulous hostess, will toss a $25,000 party tomorrow night for Johnny Ray, a singer she must have heard but never has met.

The soiree gives every indication of being the biggest social affair in Hollywood in years. The acceptance list, numbering 500 already—and growing—reads like pages from the movie almanac.

Miss Davies has talked with Ray on the phone and she knows his bride, the former Marilyn Morrison. Mrs. Ray is the daughter of Charlie Morrison, owner of the Mocambo. But what brings Ray to town, ironically, is an engagement at Ciro's the Mocambo's rival for Sunset Strip night life trade.

Ciro's signed Ray for a crying engagement at the first inkling of Johnny's romance with Morrison's daughter.

Capt. Horace Brown, Miss Davies' seafaring husband, will be at her side receiving guests in her spacious Beverly Hills home. Some of them will be Joan Crawford, Gary Cooper, Hoagy Carmichael, Ethel Merman, Debbie Reynolds, Jack Benny, Spike Jones, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Clifton Webb, Conrad Hilton, Van Johnson, Edward G. Robinson, Bill Boyd, Jean Simmons, Stewart Granger, Bill Powell, Charles Farrell, Jerry Lewis, Esther Williams, Lana Turner, Fernando Lamas and Freeman Gosden and Charles Correll, better known as Amos n' Andy.

Huge tents will be erected on the grounds. Three rooms within the mansion are being redecorated ensemble three New York night spots, Stork Club, 21 and El Morocco. There will be three bands and a host of butlers to serve. There will be a half dozen bars.

It will be something like the parties Marion used to give in her king-sized beach front cottage at Santa Monica.

An aide to the former movie queen estimates the cost of this affair at $25,000, "and that's conservative," he added.

Receive $6,450 State Funds for Pettis Roads

State funds totaling $6,450 have been received by Pettis County from the State Highway Commission towards the cost of five county King Bil' roads, according to County Treasurer Frank Wegner. Funds for two more roads, which have already been approved by the commission have not yet meen received.

Judge J. V. Kesterson said that the securement of funds for six other similar roads is "still in the process of completion."

U. S. Leads Brewery Parade

NEW YORK (AP) — There are 328 breweries operating in the new edition of Breweries of the Western Hemisphere.

The publication says there are nearly 600 breweries in all of North and South America. Of the total, Canada has 60, Brazil 60, Mexico 21, Colombia 23, with the remainder in Latin American countries.

Only one new brewery was opened in the U. S. last year to offset the shutdown of 32 during the 18 months from January, 1951, to June, 1952.

George Washington received unanimous electoral votes both times he was chosen President.

Hospitals of the Future Will Feature Scenic Views and Homey Furnishings

By BERT GOLDRATH
NEA Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO — The hospital of the future will look very much like a university campus, with small buildings grouped around a stretch of pleasantly landscaped green. And there'll be homelike furnishing so the patient won't feel so "institutionalized."

At least that's the opinion of Chicago architect Norman J. Schlossman, a vice-president of the American Institute of architects. He feels today's hospitals have been largely outmoded by recent medical advances and need a good deal of renovating.

"Most U. S. hospitals," he declares, "are functionally dead but refuse to lie down. Hundreds of them are now more than 50 or 60 years old and changes and new developments in medical techniques have been so great that they cannot fill their present-day functions satisfactorily.

"They are just not physically equipped to exploit new fields of medicine such as geriatrics (the treatment of the age) an psychiatry. And the growth of hospital insurance plans has placed a premium on two-bed rooms and made anything over a four-bed room undesirable."

As his own answer to what should be done, Schlossman cites and Psychosomatic Institute of the Michael Reed hospital in Chicago, and a new ultramodern project being planned for Lincoln, Ill.

The designers of the $2,500,000 Chicago building sought to treate a warm, homelike atmosphere, thus eliminating the gloomy "institutional" feeling, encouraging group activities and smoothing the path to social adjustment.

Mental patients are provided with bright dayrooms where they can develop an interest in occupational therapy. For economy's sake, these rooms double as dining areas. Tables are arranged for eating, working and playing in small, friendly groups rather than in long, impersonal rows.

The Lincoln project will have ultramodern "wards," new in concept, with interior walls that are high enough for privacy yet open enough to give a feeling of spaciousness and retain the economies of large group housing.

The tiled floors will be radiant-heated so that barefooted patients stepping out of bed aren't chilled. And ceilings, instead of being flat, will slope up toward the tops of the windows, "inviting the outdoors in."

Schlossman's "dream" hospital would incorporate all of these features and many more. For one thing, the building design wouldn't stop at the walls and there would be trees and other plantings "to make and break views and cast shadows."

Hospital rooms would avoid the customary high ceilings ("they make a sick person feel he's at the bottom of a hole"); there would be large expanses of glass to admit as much light as possible, with draperies controlled by the patient; and there'd be pictures and dramatic use of color to further eliminate the institutional aura.

A bonus advantage of hospital modernization would be improved staff morale. Intimate, campus-like buildings are more pleasant to work in than cold, skyscraper-like structures and the patients would receive the benefits of the staff reaction.

The general modernization of U. S. hospitals has been blocked so far, Schlossman believes, partially by local building codes. Another factor is inertia on the part of those who build and plan.

But he is confident that once the public, the planners and the builders become aware of the physical and psychological deficiencies of our present hospitals, the necessary sweeping changes will come as a matter of course.

Here's How Korean Vets Get Their GI Home Loans

By NEA Service

WASHINGTON — The discharged Korean war veteran isn't getting the break on home purchases that many World War II veterans had. It's all a question of mortgage money.

Veterans of the Korean war were recently granted home loan benefits under Public Law 550. Technically, they receive the same benefits of VA guaranteed home loans as did veterans of World War II, but there is a major difference.

In 1945, 1946 and 1947 there was plenty of home mortgage money at 4 per cent available. Today, however, there is a drastic absence of money to loan at 4 per cent, the VA home loan rate.

As a result, GI home buying booms, such as those which occurred in 1946-1948, aren't likely to be repeated, despite the recent easing of credit restrictions and the new increase in eligible veteran buyers.

The Korean veteran, therefore, won't have as good a deal — at least for the present — as his World War II cousin because of the critical shortage of mortgage financing in all areas.

Many recently discharged veterans, who have had both World War II and Korean service, mistakenly believe they are entitled to double GI Home Loan guarantees.

This is not true — with one exception. World War II veterans who have used their guarantees can be accorded re-use privileges under specific conditions laid down by the Veterans Administration.

Total applications for GI home loans, since the start of the program in 1944, now number 2,952,091, Veterans Administration reports show. In June there were 24,524 applications for such loans. The approved loan amount averaged $6,687.

VA officials have turned down requests to alter the present 4 per cent interest. That stand the home building industry claims, is greatly restricting the flow of mortgage money for VA - guaranteed home loans.

BENEFIT BILL for Korean vets is signed by the President.

Other factors which tend to hold off any present GI housing boom: Many Korean veterans were also in World War II and eligible earlier under the first GI bill.

Most Korean servicemen are still young and single and are thinking of returning to school or work before considering home purchases.

Since it always takes some time to set up the administration of a new or expanded program, the volume of applications for Korean veterans is expected to be slow for many months.

The Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act, or "Teague" bill, signed into law by the President in July, provides a guarantee of loans for Korean veterans for 10 years after the present national emergency is terminated. Under this statute, active service must have been performed on or after June 27, 1950, to whatever future date is set as the end of the emergency.

Home loan provisions of the new GI bill are very much like the one set up for World War II veterans, with only minor changes. The VA still guarantees 60 per cent of a home loan up to a maximum amount of $7500.

The direct loan program has been extended so that loans can be made in certain areas where 4 per cent financing is of available. For the vast majority of applicants, however, loans must still be obtained from banks or other private lending institutions.

Recalled veterans will have unused loan entitlements replaced by the same amount of entitlement under the new law. In this way they will not be bound to the World War II loan cutoff date of July 25, 1957.

Home loan benefits are not affected if a veteran has received other benefits under the GI bill. Using the educational benefits, for instance, has no bearing on getting a home loan.

The VA classes World War II and Korean veterans with "service not dishonorable" as eligible for the loans which may run as long as 30 years. Widows who have not remarried also qualify. Due to the recent credit restrictions, average loans do not exceed 25 years.

Government - guaranteed home loans are not gifts in any way, despite erroneous reports to the contrary. They must be repaid in full.

Procedures followed by most veterans about to purchase a home under the GI bill are first to select the house or plans and building lot desired. Then, with plans and discharge certificate, the bank or lender is contacted.

"Shopping around" in financial circles for mortgage money is recommended until the veteran finds a lender making the most attractive offer. Lenders have necessary forms, information and will forward applications to the VA's loan guarantee division.

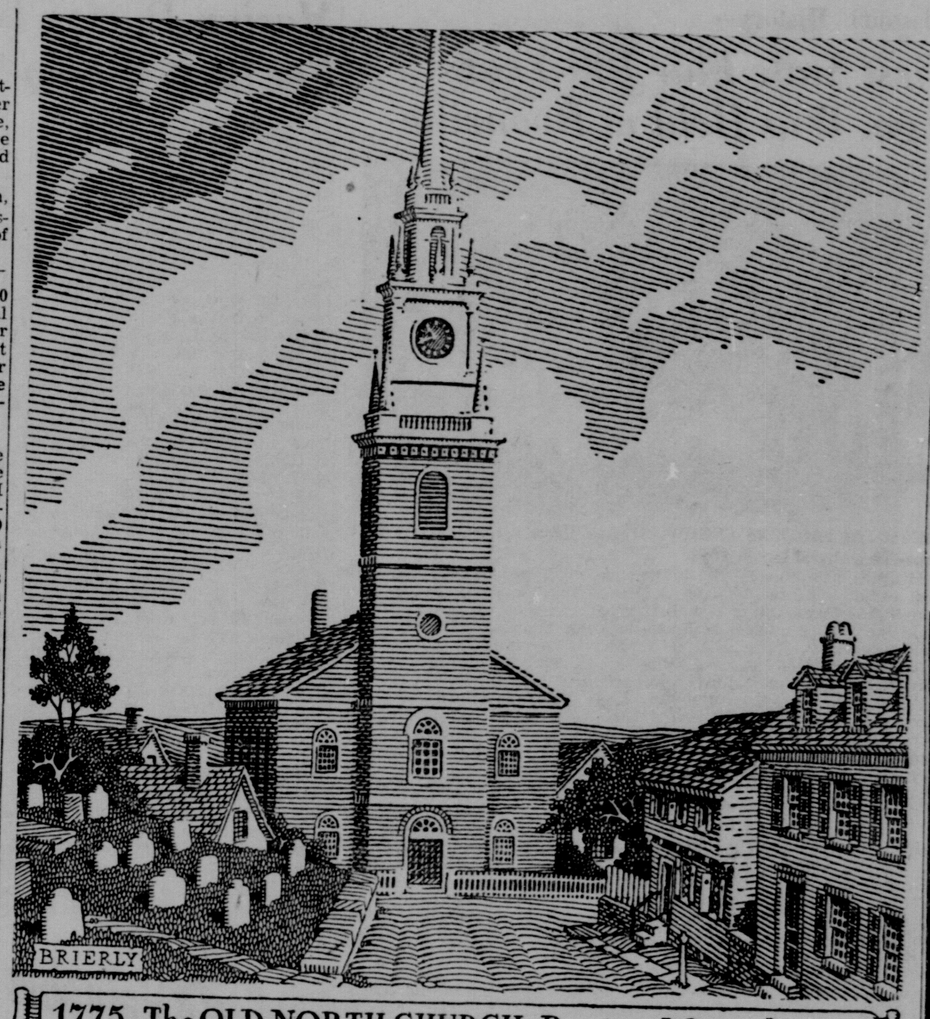
Riggs Is Trainmaster For MoPac Joplin Div.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The appointment of Lee T. Riggs, trainmaster of the Joplin division of the line, as supervisor of passenger service for the Missouri Pacific railroad was announced yesterday.

Riggs, a native of Fort Smith, Ark., succeeds Robert F. McCaslin, who retired after 49 years of service with the railroad.



1775. The OLD NORTH CHURCH, Boston, Massachusetts.

LANDMARK IN HISTORY—"One if by land and two if by sea." On the night of April 18, 1775, Robert Newman, sexton of Christ (the old North) Church left his little house on the opposite side of Salem Street, climbed to the tower of the church, hung the signal lanterns and started Paul Revere on the famous ride that kindled the flame which brought about the American Revolution. Christ Church was built in 1723, to relieve the overcrowding of King's Chapel (Boston's first Church of England, 1686) at the other end of the town, and stood just below the old burying ground on Copp's Hill. Although the belfry was blown down in 1804, it was replaced in 1807 by the present one and, today, the old church, the burying ground and King's Chapel are national shrines.

Lions See Slides Of Early Railroads

The Sedalia Lions Club saw pictures of early railroads, shown by Paul Jenkins through the courtesy of the Pettis County Historical Society, at their noonday meeting Wednesday.

A. W. Haller, program chairman, introduced Mr. Jenkins who read the history of each picture he flashed on the screen.

Abe Silverman, vice president of Lions, presided over the meeting. He announced the board of directors would hold a meeting Tuesday night at the Bothwell hotel.

The annual Pet Show sponsored by the Lions will be held at the Liberty Park band stand Sunday, Oct. 5, starting at 2 p. m. James Langridge, chairman of the program, announced there will be many prizes awarded for practically every kind of pet entered in the show.

All of the contestants will receive treats during the afternoon.

William Younger, Lion from Asheville, N. C., attended the meeting as guest of the club. Younger is a former Sedalian and is here visiting with relatives and friends.

Child Is Born On The Autumn Leaves

Little Betty Ann Henneberry is doing fine, and so is her mother, Mrs. Dan R. Henneberry, at the Henneberry home at 1015 West Emmons, Mexico, Missouri.

The reason they're at home instead of at the hospital is that Betty Ann just didn't wait for the trip to the hospital Sunday night. She arrived in the yard, as Mrs. Henneberry left the house for the family car to make the trip.

"It was the first case like that I've had in 35 years of practice", said Dr. H. . Gorrell, who broke all traffic rules in answering the call from the frantic family. "But the baby was perfect, just perfect."

Dr. Gorrell was called at about 11:30 Sunday night to officiate under the light of a flashlight with a background of autumn leaves, when it developed that there just wasn't any chance of a hospital trip.

Betty Ann, who weighed seven and three-quarters pound, has an older brother, six and an older sister, eight.

Saran hair can be combed, curled, washed and "permanent-waved." Everything in hair styling, too, from pigtails to poodle cuts. Some Saran hair is actually rooted into doll's head; others have molded hair.

Dolls are made of latex, vinyl or unbreakable plastic, with sizes ranging from 19 in. to 26 in. All have sleeping eyes—some have cry voices.

Each one wears a lovely dress; some are in Christening clothes, others wear Baby dresses or Little-Girl frocks. All clothing is beautifully made with fine details of trim and button closings.

Many added features — hats, petticoats, pinafores, hair ribbons and other attractive trims. You'll find just the doll you want here at Wards, for that special little girl — hurry in.
